BOSTON TRAIN WRECK

MANCHESTER, N. H., March 22.—It is reported here that the Boston express from Montreal was wrecked at Lyndonville, Vt. It is said the recent freshets washed away a bridge and track for 200 yards and the train ran into the river.

It is reported that the engineer was drowned.

No further details as to the dead or injured have been received.

At the general superintendent's office of the Boston & Maine this afternoon, an official said:

All the report we have at this time is that the engine of train No. 86 plunged into the river at a point four miles north of Lyndonville, Vt. So far as we know no lives were lost."

MOTHER INNOCENT, DECLARES MRS. KEYES

Mrs. June Keyes, in a passionate defence of her mother, Mrs. Jennie May Eaton, said today:

"My mother is innocent. I know it. I am just as confident of the result as can be. The officers can search and search our house. If they want to, but they won't find anything that will incriminate mother."

This is Mrs. Keyes' first statement for publication since her mother was arrested.

Mrs. Keyes is the elder daughter of the woman who is accused of poisoning Rear Admiral Joseph O. Eaton. The mother is in Plymouth jail. The daughter, who spoke so earnestly in Mrs. Eaton's defence, was shopping in Rockland when she made the above declaration.

Mrs. Keyes also said that she had been summoned to testify before the Plymouth Grand Jury's special session next Monday. Her sister, Miss Dorothy Ainsworth Eaton, has also been summoned. The State demands that both daughters, testify in the grand jury proceedings which District Attorney Barker has arranged in his effort to indict their mother.

Mrs. Keyes was allowed to leave the Eaton home at Assinippi today without a guard. This was considered all the more unusual because State Officer Scott had abruptly called her back into the house yesterday when she went to the rear of a henhouse on the premises and some reporters started toward her.

Mrs. Keyes left the house at 9:30. Constable L. Frank Hammond, who is guarding the place, and who has accompanied her on a previous shopping trip, made no attempt to follow her.

She walked quickly to the trolley line and boarded the first car for Rockland. She went into J. E. Sullivan's drug store, came out quickly, stopped in the railroad station a moment, then went to some stores on shopping errands.

Denounces Stepfather.

In one of the stores a group of reporters found her. With her naturally high color increased by her emotion, the elder daughter, who has consistently upheld her mother and denounced her dead stepfather, said vehemently:

My mother is innocent. I know it. I am just as confident of the result as can be. The officers can search and

DRAWBRIDGE MAN CLEARS UP DELAY

John H. Nelson, the young superintendent of the railroad drawbridge at Neponset on the Plymouth division, rises to remark that the types did him a great injustice yesterday when the blamed a "jam" of the drawbridge for the holding up of trains there yesterday morning between the hours of 7 and 8. "The holdup," Superintendent Nelson says, "was not due to any fault in the operation of the drawbridge. The defect was at the electrical end, with which I have nothing to do."

DR. H. R. BENNETT DEAD.

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., March 22.—Dr. H. R. Bennett, a prominent physician of this city, died today of pneumonia.

JAMES PROUTY, "POISON DREAD" WITNESS

This is the eighty-eight-year-old neighbor of the Eaton's, to whom the admiral once expressed his fear of being poisoned.

It was to Prouty also that Mrs. Eaton and June Ainsworth expressed their horror of poison and their fear of having any around.

BIG NOTE DEALS BY PETERSON

Benjamin D. Peterson, Jr., a wholesale lumber broker, of No. 5 Federal street, has suddenly disappeared, leaving behind liabilities estimated at $135,000.

Just before Mr. Peterson dropped out of sight, he negotiated notes in the banks with which he had been doing business, amounting to $18,000. These notes were mostly due Peterson from companies which have failed. These notes are worthless.

Notes of this sort are said to be in the possession of the Newton Trust Company, the Beacon Trust Company, the Guaranty Trust Company of Cambridge and one national bank in Boston.

The Charles River National Bank of Cambridge also holds one of these notes, which, however, is secured. Including these banks, there are about twenty-five creditors who have appeared to date. They are represented by the law firms of Hanigan & Fox of Barristers Hall, and Moores & Whiting of No. 141 Milk street.

As far as can be learned, Peterson, who had been doing business with a yearly profit of from $65,000 to $100,000, lost heavily in the failures of four or five big lumber companies.

Hit by Big Failures.

His losses in these companies, which are considered responsible for the contraction of credit which forced Peterson to the wall, were $2,000, Henry C. Klindt of Albany; $1,000, E. K. Watson of Warren, R. I.; $1,000, Somerset Lumber Company of Newark, N. J.; $15,000, T. G. Wescott and the Harthorn Lumber Company, and $2,000 in the G. B. Preston Company of Watervliet, N. Y. It was notes on these companies for these amounts that Peterson negotiated just before dropping out of sight.

The law firms representing the creditors, among whom are some of the big lumber companies, such as the Jones Hardwood Company, the Semis Lumber Company and the Litchfield Lumber Company, have discovered that Peterson had been retrenching for the last year.

About a month ago he announced to his neighbors in Cambridge, where he lived at No. 19 Berkeley street, that his wife's health compelled her to go West. He left the impression that she was going to Los Angeles.

After Mrs. Alice Peterson, his wife, and his daughter had left Cambridge, Peterson disposed of his furniture. He made no secret of his wife's trip West. She had been considered in poor health, and a year ago had taken a trip to Europe to consult physicians in Germany.

Planned Trip West.

After her departure from Cambridge, Peterson himself took a room at the Colonial Club in Quincy street, Cambridge. He announced there that he was keeping bachelor quarters for only a short while and that he expected to go West himself.

His son, Harry B. Peterson, who graduated with honors from Harvard last June, making the four-year course in three years, is still in Boston, and is employed by a Boston newspaper. The son insists that his father was compelled to leave Boston so suddenly on account of Mrs. Peterson's health. Had he remained, the son declares, he would have been able to swing his business over the crisis.

Another instance of Peterson's economy was his moving his office from No. 95 Milk street, to No. 5 Federal street with a saving in rent of nearly one-half.

March 10, while Peterson was in his office, this telegram arrived from Los Angeles: "Come at once, am worse and need you." It was signed "Alice." His wife's name is "Alice."

NOTED CHINESE EDUCATOR IS ASSASSINATED

SHANGHAI, March 22.—Former Minister of Education Ching Chung was assassinated today by a Manchu. When the assassin was taken to the police station and learned the identity of his victim he showed great distress.

"I have made a terrible mistake," said he, "and I wish to apologize. I intended to kill General Hsing, who has done great harm to our country. I hope I may be forgiven for my error and to atone for my carelessness I certainly wish perpetual peace to the soul of Ching Chung."

SAY DOROTHY ARNOLD IS AT HOME, DYING

NEW YORK, March 22.—Mystery again centres about the home from which Dorothy H. C. Arnold disappeared December 12, 1910. Rumor has it that the heiress whose mysterious disappearance has puzzled two continents, has returned to the home at No. 108 East Seventy-ninth street.

The story is that Dorothy Arnold was found Thursday of last week wandering about the East Side of New York in a dazed and pitiably weak condition. The report states that she is now dying in a third-floor room at her father's house.

Francis E. Arnold, the young woman's father, her mother and her brother, John, all denied emphatically that there was any truth whatever in the report.

SCUTARI IN FLAMES; FALL OF CITY NEAR

VIENNA, March 22.—The greater part of the besieged Turkish city of Scutari, which the Montenegrins have been investing since the outbreak of the Balkan war, has been destroyed by fire, and its fall is imminent. Several Europeans have been killed in the bombardment and the capture of the city was expected in twenty-four hours.

"Easter Will Be a Dandy Day," Says the Weather Man

Fair and colder tonight. Sunday fair. Moderate west wind.

The destructive rain and hail storm that swept over the Middle and Eastern States during the night passed down the St. Lawrence Valley and out to sea early today and as a result Easter Sunday will be a fair day. This information was given out officially by Weather Forecaster Smith from his weather lookout atop the Federal Building today.

The news has brought out an army of Joys among the folks who have new hats and suits and dresses which they are planning to wear in tomorrow's Easter parade.

BOSTON LINERS DAMAGED BY CRASH IN FOG

VINEYARD HAVEN, March 22.—The steamer City of Macon, Captain Dizer commanding, which was in collision last night in Tarpaulin Cove with the James S. Whitney, Metropolitan line, arrived here at 9:45 this morning and anchored in the harbor. She has a hole in her side eight feet wide and extending from the deck to five feet below the waterline.

TO SEND MORE FOR LESS BY PARCEL POST

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Reduction of parcel post rates was foreshadowed today by data which the Postoffice Department has been collecting as to the cost of the new service.

It was stated that the information gathered would justify Postmaster-General Burleson in appealing to the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to reduce the rates on packages for transmission between cities in distances of less than 300 miles. The weight limit may be increased for packages from eleven to fifteen pounds. The Postoffice Department has called for data from all postmasters. The data will show the number of packages handled, with cost of handling and shipment. These reports will not be complete until shortly after April.

Postal experts have come to the conclusion that on the short haul packages the potential of business has not been realized, and that the revenues could be greatly increased by a reduction of rates on such business without a substantial increase in the cost of handling. The reports are less definite as to the advisability of raising the weight limit.

DEAD MAN IN MUD AT GLOUCESTER

GLOUCESTER, March 22.—Mystery surrounds the death here of a man supposed to be Chris Anderson, a fisherman. The man was found lying face downward in the mud underneath the dock of the Atlantic Maritime Company early today. There was a bruise on the head.

ECZEMA

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk-Crust, Weeping Skin, etc.

ECZEMA CAN BE CURED TO STAY cured, you say, I mean just what I say—C-u-r-e-d to stay cured—not merely patched up for a while, to return worse than before. Remember, I make this statement after investigating for a term of years of my time on this one disease and handling in the meantime nearly half a million cases of this dreadful disease. Now, I do not care what all you have tried for your case of Eczema, or what you have been told you could be cured—all I ask is a chance to show you that I know what I am talking about. If you will write me TODAY, I will send you a FREE TRIAL of my absolutely soothing, guaranteed, Eczema Cure that will convince you more in a day than I or anyone else could in a month of talking. Don't delay, but write me today and get just a chance to test my claims. By writing me today I believe you will secure more real comfort than you have ever thought this would holds for you. Just try it and you will see I am telling you the truth.

TURNED DOWN MILLIONS, SAYS DR. FRIEDMANN

NEW YORK, March 22.—In an interview given to the AMERICAN today Dr. Friedmann made several statements that will prove of vast public interest. He declared:

I have been touched to the heart by the pathetic scenes I have witnessed and pathetic appeals for help to me. I have been unable to treat hundreds, yes, thousands of persons whose only hope of life lies in my cure. They come to me in the street, at my hotel, everywhere, and there is nothing I can do but tell them to wait.

If it could be arranged I would willingly spend most of my waking hours at a great clinic where all could come and receive free treatment. But my work has been hampered by unfair and unjust criticism. I had planned to treat all comers. For the present that plan must be given up.

However, I have forgotten all about the criticisms of myself and of my work. My one thought now is to demonstrate the worth of my vaccine and begin treating the tens of thousands of consumptive here.

"Hit Below Belt."

Although Dr. Friedmann would not be quoted to that effect it was evident he believes he has been "hit below the belt" by certain members of the medical profession and certain of the laity. Under the criticism with which he has been assailed on all sides, however, Dr. Friedmann has remained firm in his faith in the American public's spirit of fair play. It was revealed in the interview that the German specialist has already offered amounts of money for treatment which in the aggregate would dwarf the wealth of Rockefeller and Carnegie.

These offers range from $1,000,000 or more for a single injection of the vaccine to propositions of small salaried persons to deed over half of their incomes for life.

A young engineer from up-state yesterday begged Dr. Friedmann to save the life of his tubercular bride, virtually offering to mortgage himself to the physician for life.

"Not Money I Want."

"It is not money that I want," exclaimed Dr. Friedmann, striding up and down his apartments in the Hotel Astoria. "I have refused Mr. Finlay's million dollars and I can't begin to tell you how much more. I want only recognition from the American people and American physicians. I have no financial ambitions.

I want my vaccine to do the greatest possible good. This cannot be measured in money."

UNCLE SAM APPEALS TO HIRED GIRL FOR HER POTATO SECRET

A Luther Burbank or a committee of servant girl inventors are the only quarters from which Uncle Sam today hopes for relief from his potato paring problem.

A government report shows that patent machines for disrobing the potato are at their best only when the vegetables are regular in shape. For a potato of the cubist variety, or one that has grown in a jig saw pattern, the servant girl seems to be the only agency for its preparation for the table.

Therefore, the government believes some wizard will have to arise and train the potato in the round, regular way in which it should grow, or else the servant girl must be called in consultation to aid in the improvement of the machine so it will pare potatoes catch-as-catch-can, Graeco-Roman, or any other style.

If the potatoes have warts, the machine, instead of paring them, smashes them. Uncle Sam knows, for he's tried all the machines invented, electrical, those turned with a crank—all kinds—they're failures.

Morgan in Hotel 'Fortress' Repulses Art Collectors

LONDON, March 22.—A Rome dispatch to The Daily Mail says that the Grand Hotel, where J. Pierpont Morgan is staying, may be compared to a closely besieged fortress. The Daily Mail says there is not an art dealer or antiquary in Rome who is not making desperate efforts to approach the financier with an offer of some extraordinary bargain.

All sorts of odds and ends are being uncarthed from drawers and cupboards by private persons, who fondly believe they can call on Mr. Morgan, dispose of their goods and return home with ab undle of banknotes.

BURY MONSIGNOR O'CALLAGHAN AT ST. AUGUSTINE'S

The Rt. Rev. Mgr. Denis O'Callaghan will be buried Monday in St. Augustine's cemetery, corner of Dorchester and West Sixth streets, next to the mortuary chapel which was one of the first Catholic churches built in Boston and brick at that. The first church used by the Monsignor when he was appointed pastor of St. Augustine's parish more than sixty years ago.

The executive committee of the United Irish League of Boston at a special meeting, took action on the death of Mgr. O'Callaghan of South Boston. There was a very large attendance. Michael J. Jordan, president of the Boston Central Branch, presiding. Heartfelt tributes were paid.

Tired Astronomers Sleep After Seeing Moon in Eclipse

A score or more of weary Harvard astronomers, professors and students, slept late today after a weary vigil watching the moon in partial eclipse. They were too tired to be aroused and to tell about what they saw until late. "Not to be called," was the order they all left.

A half million or more Bostonians turned cityward for their day's work, though, despite the eclipse. Whatever effect it had on sage astronomers at Harvard, it had no effect on business Boston. Everyone went to work just as usual, and some probably not even knowing there had been an eclipse. The eclipse was only partial in this vicinity.

WOULD HAVE ARBITRATORS FIX WAGE LIMIT

Arbitration of the questions involved in the strike of the 800 members of the Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, if the strikers will return to work Monday morning, was today proposed by the Ladies' Tailor and Dressmakers' Association of this city.

Albert Hurwitch, president of the Manufacturers' Association, stated that this offer had been made to Abraham Rosenberg and Abraham Mitchell, national president and vice-president, respectively of the union. If accepted, he said, all the strikers would return to work Monday morning and the questions involved would be taken up in a joint conference between the representatives of the union and the association.

Provided a full settlement of these questions was not effected within a week, arbitration by a third party is planned.

Mr. Hurwitch asserts that the strikers have asked a minimum of $24 a week, on an eight-hour day basis. The present rate, he says, calls for only a $20 weekly minimum, on a nine-hour day basis. This increase, members of the association say, they cannot afford to grant. Hence, their proposition that the strikers return to work Monday morning, and that all differences left unadjusted by the joint conference committee be arbitrated by a third party.

REPORT 250 DEAD IN SOUTH AFTER STORM

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 22.—The death toll in the Southern States alone from the storm Thursday night and Friday will probably exceed 250. More than 400 persons were injured, some of them fatally.

Additional details from Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas and Texas tell of terrible havoc to life and property, and the money loss in these States alone will be above $2,000,000.

The following casualties were reported by Alabama towns: Penchfree, 40 killed and 70 hurt; Toomsville, 24 killed and 34 hurt; Decatur, 3 killed and 9 hurt; Huntsville, 4 killed and 7 hurt; Dyna, 3 killed and 20 hurt; Morrison, 5 killed and 9 hurt. These gave a total of 81 killed in Alabama alone.

Heavy damage was done to the cotton crop. Thousands of persons throughout Alabama are homeless. Scattered reports from Mississippi gave a total of fourteen fatalities there, although it was believed that this number would at least be doubled when all the storm news was in.

LOWELL TO GIVE BACCALAUREATE

ORGANIZATION

Personality is not the only attribute an hotel must have to be successful. It must be organized, and the definition of "organize," according to Webster, is: "To arrange a task in suitable parts, so that it may be performed efficiently."

To arrange in suitable parts is the secret of organization, and this arrangement can only be made by men trained in the work; by generals who can lead efficiently. Organization then can do much for your personal comfort.

How would your own business succeed without organization, without the division into units, each under a competent head?

Take the bell boys' department, the maids' department, the clerks' department, the lost and found department, the restaurant, the Dutch room, the musical department, the vaudeville show and, in fact, on and on to the steamship department, the information department, the stenographic department, the receiving and shipping department, the laundry, the valet department—all the various departments must be under a competent head and run as a unit to be run with efficiency; efficiency of such a nature that you are served by them all in a proper manner.

The average person knows very little about the schooling and training necessary to have every employe, from the clerk who greets you at the desk to the porter who sees you to your train, serve you as you should be served, with courtesy and as though it were a pleasure to please. This instruction and training is the finishing touch to organization. This is what makes organization 98% plus. Every one is taught that courtesy and consideration are the first steps toward their own success.

And how you will notice this courtesy by comparison! No matter where you have stopped in the past, you will see the difference in the treatment you receive at the Martinique. You will feel that the attendants go out of their way to please you; you will realize the true meaning of organization at the

WOMAN TELLS OF PERILS IN MEXICAN FIGHT

Mrs. Hortense Emerson Orozco, formerly a Winthrop girl and later a nurse at the Homeopathic Hospital, was in the midst of the flying bullets of the Mexican revolution. In one of the first letters received in Boston from Mexico since the revolution she tells her Winthrop friends of her narrow escape from death.

The stone house in which the family lived was peppered with rebel bullets, while federal troops lay on the roof and kept up their firing in return.

Finally the young American girl was able to leave the city, walking seven miles, where she took refuge with friends. She tells how bread is one dollar a loaf, milk a dollar a quart and charcoal $10 a bag.

In Hospital Romance.

Mrs. Orozco was formerly Hortense Emerson of Winthrop, the daughter of Captain Emerson, a well-known steamship captain. She became a nurse at the Homeopathic Hospital, where she met Dr. Antonio Orozco, a young Mexican, who had just graduated from the Boston University School of Medicine, and was taking his hospital experience at the Homeopathic Hospital. They fell in love, the nurse and the young interne were married and moved to Mexico City two years ago. She says in her interesting letter:

The revolution has been terrible enough and we were right in the midst of it almost the whole time. You see the blow came as such a surprise to everyone that we didn't have any opportunity to get away. Our house is only three blocks from the National Arsenal (or "Ciudadela," as it is called here), which was the very centre of all the fighting, and for a week we heard nothing but the boom, boom, boom of the cannon, the cracking of mausers, the tut, tut, tut of the machine guns and the singing of flying bullets.

Never before did I realize how expressive those terms are. All the time we had to stay in the hall, as that was the safest place, between two thick stone walls, and bullets were whining past the windows of the other rooms all the time. Thanks to the shape and position of our house (built on a corner and kind of flat-roofed shaped) we got only one bullet in our parlor, which came in through the balcony window and buried in the opposite wall.

Soldiers on Roof.

We had soldiers on our roof and an empty house across the street was taken by the soldiers, so we did not know at what time we might have to take refuge in the cellar if the bombs began to come our way.

Living expenses were something terrible. Milk, seventy-five cents and a dollar a quart; bread, a dollar a loaf when we could get it; and charcoal, which we use almost entirely for cooking, $10 a bag. We had one little peephole where we ventured to peek out once in a while, and from here we watched the burning of Madero's house.

Then on Sunday, February 16, they arranged an armistice for a few hours, and so we all fled through the city to San Pedro, one of the suburbs, to take refuge in the home of some friends there. This is about seven miles out of the city, and we had to go the whole distance on foot as no conveyances of any kind were available. We could still hear the cannon from there, but not quite so terrifying. Then about noon, on Tuesday, the firing ceased, and when, about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, we heard the distant chiming of the cathedral bells, you can't imagine the relief and thankfulness we all felt. Soon the bells and whistles of all the churches and factories were sounding, and even though it was sunset, the birds, too, began to sing as if they, too, felt a thrill of joy that peace had again come to stay.

The news spread rapidly and soon we knew all about the capture of Madero and Pino Suarez, all of which you have read about in the newspapers. The next morning we were fortunate enough to rent a mule cart to bring us home. You would have laughed to see us, but it was better than walking.

Big City in Ruins.

The city surely looked gloomy enough. Ruin and destruction on all sides. In some of the streets passing was impossible, for all the telephone and electric light wires were down. All that day we saw carload after carload of dead bodies being taken out of the city to be burned; and on our trip back to the city we saw several dead men and many dead horses. You can imagine what a horrible nightmare it has all been!

Enough cannot be said in praise of the American Ambassador, Mr. Henry Lane Wilson. Largely through his efforts the armistice was arranged and he has done everything in his power to alleviate the suffering and establish peace.

I do not know what are the sentiments of the papers at home, but let me tell you if you have any idea of regarding him (Madero) as a martyr, etc., that very few people here have any sympathy for him. You can't imagine the corruption and graft that existed. For instance, when Diaz resigned the presidency, he left in the national treasury $62,000,000 cash and now in less than two years the country is bankrupt and foreign credit almost exhausted. We only know definitely of a few of the murders, etc., that have been committed.

The Safe Way to Remove Corns

Paring a corn with steel is dangerous. A slip of the blade means a gash which may result in blood poison.

Treating a corn with unguaranteed remedies is uncertain. They may cure—but "Oh joy! I've said good-bye to corns." again they may not. And if they don't, you are money out of pocket.

Pierce's Corn Plasters

Are absolutely guaranteed to cure. If they don't, the druggist gives you back your money.

The pain ceases quickly after applying the first Plaster. In ordinary cases, the corn, root and all, can be removed in 48 hours. With corns of long-standing 5 days are required. But in every case the cure is sure and lasting.

Just try Pierce's Corn Plasters on that painful corn which you think can't be cured. There's a pleasant surprise in store for you. Remember, we take the risk—not you.

Suffragists Put Up Sign to Defy Brookline 'Antis'

Brookline suffragists will fire their first broadside in the town's big billboard battle today.

The suffragists say that nothing will stop them from putting up a sign of their own directly under the electric sign erected by the "Antis" at Washington and Boylston streets, Brookline. The "Votes for women" leaders announce that their sign will surely go up today despite the "Anti" volleys of protest.

Mrs. May Hutcheson Page, president of the Brookline Equal Suffrage Association, said she had secured the right to have the sign put up from John S. Meaney, a member of the grocery firm of T. F. McMahon & Co., which occupies the first floor of the building.

'Postwoman' Signs Again; $300 a Year For 10 Miles Daily

STOCKBRIDGE, March 22.—Miss Florence S. Markham, who in the nearly twenty-four years she has been carrying the mail between Interlaken postoffice and Stockbridge, has traveled 86,400 miles for $300 a year, has just received word that she has been awarded the contract for another four years.

Miss Markham, who is now forty years old, is a familiar figure in Stockbridge. Every day, rain or shine, snow storm or gale, she traverses about ten miles.

Parents, Uncle and Aunt Jailed; Girl Left Alone

After an investigation by Agent Critchson, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children has taken care of the little five-year-old daughter of Louis Wolf, formerly of Boston, now in Auburn prison, as is his wife, the child's mother. The girl was sent to live with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McGuinness, No. 879 Harrison avenue. The uncle was sentenced to from four to five years in State Prison and the aunt was arrested a short time ago, leaving the child homeless.

CHINATOWN MAYOR PROTESTS ACTIVITY OF POLICE CAPTAIN

Yee Wah, "Mayor of Chinatown," and Moy Ni Wing, owners of the building at No. 11 Oxford place, have appealed for protection against the alleged unfair activity of Captain James P. Cauney of the Lagrange street station, and all Boston's Tenderloin is today anxiously waiting the outcome of the opening chapter of what is expected to be a long controversy.

Yee Wah and Wing filed a bill in equity in the United States District Court to restrain Cauney from interfering with a wooden shutter on their tenement window. An iron grating, which they had refused to take down, was torn from the window by the captain's orders. Cauney says he has reason to believe the basement is resorted to for gambling and that under the laws of Massachusetts he has a right to demand they take down the wooden shutter which supplanted the iron grating.

LITTLE GIRL CHUMS DIE TOGETHER UNDER WHEELS OF FREIGHT

PROVIDENCE, March 22.—Two little voices are hushed as the result of a peculiar accident which cost the lives of Florence May Turner, daughter of George Turner of Smight street, Centredale, and Phyllis Alberton, daughter of Matthew Alberton, also of Centredale. The little girls were chums, each four years old.

The children were playing tag in the freight yard of the Stillwater Grain Mill. Tired, they crawled between an empty freight car standing on a spur track. One Alphonse Labbe had been pushing the car along and had rested a few moments. He started the car again, down an incline. Florence was killed immediately, and her chum died upon reaching the Rhode Island State Hospital.

AUSTRIA AND RUSSIA AGREE ON ALBANIA

LONDON, March 22.—Danger of war between Austria-Hungary and Russia is believed to have vanished. The Daily Telegraph's Vienna correspondent states that the official announcement soon will be made that the two governments have reached a final settlement of the thorny question which divided them. The difficulty was the delimitation of Albania and this has been amicably settled.

MILITANTS PLAN INVASION OF CHURCHES

LONDON, March 22.—"Spiritual militant suffragettes created a wave of consternation today by a threat to invade the fashionable West End churches tomorrow during Easter services, and to wear mourning relieved by bright yellow "Votes for Women" sashes.

The leaders of the spiritual suffragettes say they will make no effort to interfere with the services, but that they merely "wish to show they were animated by a spirit more than earthly flesh."

Policemen will be stationed about the doors of some of the churches to turn back the women.

Sylvia Pankhurst, one of the militant leaders and a daughter of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who was released from jail after serving five weeks of a two months' sentence, hurried away to the nearest restaurant after leaving the prison doors and ordered "the biggest steak in the house."

She had been on a hunger strike since she was incarcerated and had been become so weakened that she was released for the sake of her own health.

Here is her story:

I decided to go on a hunger strike and make them liberate me, or else die. But they tried to fed me forcibly.

Twice daily, five or six wardresses and two doctors pried my mouth open with a steel gag and pressed a tube into my stomach.

I resisted all the time. My gums bled. I am afraid they may say we do not resist, yet my shoulders are bruised by the struggling while they held the tube in my throat. I need to feel I should go mad at first and was pretty near it, as I think they feared, but I got over that, and my digestion is the only thing which is likely to suffer now.

In Sunday's AMERICAN

SAY, CO-EDS, ARE YOU SEEKING A DEGREE? LEARN SHAMPOOING!

(Mary Angel, the daughter of a clergyman, is earning her way through Ann Arbor College by shampooing the heads of fellow co-eds and professors on Sundays.—News item.)

The dominie sat in the barber's chair
Asking an egg shampoo;
A fair co-ed was a-rubbin' his head
To a rose-like, pinky hue,
But she smoled a smile as she poised aloft
Some suds of enormous size;
And then, with a dash, and sickening splash,
She doused them into his eyes.

The dominie yelled and called for towels,
But a hand as heavy as lead
Transfixed him there in the barber's chair,
And the fair shampooist said:
"Do I get a degree of an LL. D.
If I hand you a towel or two?"
And the dominie sighed, but finally cried,
As he blinked and winked, "YOU DO!"

STORK AT NAVY YARD; FIRST TIME IN YEARS

The first child born in years at the Charlestown Navy Yard has come to grace the family of Captain and Mrs. Joseph Owens. The baby is a daughter, the first child of the family and will take her place as the "daughter of the yard." Captain Owen is second in command and executive officer of the yard.

M'COMBS DECLINES TO GO TO PARIS

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Assuring President Wilson of his "profound appreciation" but declining that his acceptance would invoke greater sacrifices than he cared to make, William McCombs, chairman of the Democratic Committee, has declined the ambassadorship to France.

RAILROAD CHIEF A SUICIDE IN WOODS

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 22.—After a week's search the body of E. A. Peck, general superintendent of the St. Louis Southwestern Railroad, who disappeared from his hotel here March 12, has been found in the woods near Hot Springs, today, his pistol clutched in his hand.

ARMY CHEERS CONSTANTINE AT SALONIKA

ATHENS, March 22.—King Constantine I. and Premier Venizelos of Greece arrived at Salonika today, extraordinary precautions being taken to guard him from a fate similar to that which overtook King George. Constantine was received with cheers by the Greek army officers.

Among the first to pledge loyalty to the new monarch of the Hellenes was Lieutenant Colonel Francendis, side-de-camp to King George, who was at the latter's side when he was assassinated.

The meeting between Constantine and his mother was most affecting while the pathos of the situation when Constantine gazed upon the face of his dead father moved even the officers of the line who have been used to look since the beginning of the war upon scenes of carnage and the grief which accompanies war.

HINT POISON MAY HAVE KILLED BOY "FEVER VICTIM"

SOUTH ASHBURNHAM, March 22.—The Ashburnham Board of Health today rendered its decision on the application of Attorney Thomas L. Walsh for the right to exhume the body of Harold McAuliff, ten-year-old-son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy McAuliff, whose parents believe he may have died from poison instead of scarlet fever.

FRENCH PLAN TO PUNISH BERBERS

PARIS, March 22.—The French government is preparing to make an active campaign against the Berber tribesmen in Africa who have been attacking and killing French soldiers. A French column will be sent into the region to punish the warlike tribesmen who recently surprised a French outpost and killed fifty soldiers.

PROSECUTION COMPLETES ITS PLANS TO INDICT WIDOW OF ADMIRAL EATON

search our houses, if they want to, but they won't find anything that will incriminate mother.

It is a shame and an outrage, the way we have been treated.

They should have taken the brain of the Admiral, to find out whether the man was insane or not, as well as to examine him for traces of poison.

They should at least, I think, have been as anxious to find out why the Admiral was in his right mind when he died as they were to seek evidence to prosecute the family.

When the Admiral was in the navy one o fthe largest guns a ten or twelve-inch one went off right near him, and he has never been the same man since. He has been queer, I mean, ever since.

Admits Jury Summons.

"Have you been summoned to testify before the Grand Jury?" she was asked.

"Yes," she replied, "I have been summoned before the Grand Jury to tell of the Admiral's death."

Meanwhile Mrs. Keyes had been recognized by shoppers, who gathered around.

Francis J. Geogan, the new attorney in the Eaton defence, happened to hear at this time that Mrs. Keyes was being quizzed by reporters in the store. Attorney Geogan hurried to the scene and prevented Mrs. Keyes from saying any more. She went with the attorney to his office.

CALL TWENTY-FIVE WITNESSES FOR GRAND JURY SPECIAL SESSION

District Attorney Barker, in charge of the prosecution of Mrs. Jennie May Eaton, accused of poisoning her husband, Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton, today indicated his plans to rush through an indictment of the woman by the special Grand Jury of Plymouth County. The Grand Jury meets in special session on Monday and very important witness in the case will be brought before it at that time.

The six deputy sheriffs who have been securing Plymouth County and outside territory for several days, have completed their work and have served summons on persons who are wanted as witnesses for the special session of the Grand Jury.

Twenty-Five Witnesses Called.

While the specific list of witnesses has not been given out by District Attorney Barker, it is known that it is substantially as follows:

Mrs. Ralph P Keyes (Jane Ainsworth).
Dorothy V. (Ainsworth) Eaton.
Mrs. George Harrison.
Ralph P. Keyes.
A. F. Jacobs.
Mrs. A. F. Jacobs.
James Prouty.
James Thom of Hingham.
Frank S. Alger, Assinippi Blacksmith.
Mrs. Hannah Barnes.
Mrs. Mary Keene, who has been helping at Eaton home.
Medical Examiner Gilman Osgood.
Dr. Joseph Frame.
State Officer John Scott.
Deputy Sheriff John T. Condon.
Police Chief Walter Osborn of Norwell.
Constable L. Frank Hammond.
Ernest Sparrell, undertaker.
Dr. Frank G. Wheatley.
Earle Fossman.
Beale Cushamore.
Leon Booth.
Mrs. William Magoun.
Charles Lapham.
Miss Annie Simmons.

The Grand Jury witnesses will include all those at the inquest and others deemed desirable for the next step in the prosecution.

The summoning of Mrs. Keyes and Dorothy Eaton and, presumably, of Mrs. George Harrison, the aged mother of Mrs. Eaton, has attracted much attention.

Mrs. Harrison has been regarded as a leading State witness ever since the arrest of her daughter.

But Mrs. Harrison feels her position keenly. She has said, however, that she had to tell the truth, no matter what happened.

If Mrs. Harrison is close to the accused woman, her daughters are none the less so.

The second generation (the brother) is in jail, with the grandmother and the daughters called by the State to testify against her in a capital case.

Depositions May Be Necessary.

If the District Attorney is bent on getting before the grand jurors the story that Mrs. Harrison told him at the "home session" of the Eaton inquest, then he may have to do so by deposition. It is considered doubtful by the neighbors whether Mrs. Harrison, after all the physical and mental distress she has experienced in the past fortnight, would be in any condition to go to Plymouth and testify in the grand jury room.

Another deposition, too, that may have to be taken is that of James Prouty, the neighbor of the Eatons, who has said that the Admiral told him:

"You are a lucky man, Jim, you don't have to be afraid of anybody trying to poison you."

Mr. Prouty is eighty-eight years old and has not been farther than the Assinippi grocery, half a mile distant, for thirty years. How he could ever stand a thirty-five mile journey to Plymouth courthouse and the added strain of grand jury testimony, is a question to the village gossips.

The Assinippi household was more at ease today than it has been since Mrs. Eaton's arrest.

Mrs. George Harrison was better. She came downstairs at 7 o'clock, whereas she has kept to her room until noon before this.

Dorothy Eaton was about the house as usual, doing the housework.

Mrs. Keyes came out in the yard early, fed the chickens and attended to other outside duties. Then she went in, changed into her sombre street attire and came out at 9:30 to go to Rockland.

JAMES THOM SAYS ADMIRAL RESENTED HIS CALLS AT HOME

James Thom, the sixty-year-old Hingham Centre nurseryman, admits that he quarreled with Admiral Eaton over his frequent visits to the Eaton home. Mr. Thom said he knew the Admiral did not like to have him call on Jennie, but he did not wish to have him seen with Jane. He said the Admiral's resentment led the latter to assault him in the Eaton home. Mrs. Eaton came between the Admiral and Mr. Thom and asked Mr. Thom to leave the house, the nurseryman says. Later Mr. Thom met Admiral Eaton on the road and asked him if he had a gun with him.

"If the Admiral had made a move that day I would have punched his head off," said Mr. Thom.

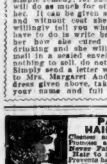
Mr. Thom says that Mrs. Eaton told him she once found a pellet containing a drug in the Admiral's bed and that she was so afraid it might be poison she burned it.

He says Jane had cause to fear the Admiral and he believes that the Admiral was insane.

This Wife and Mother

Wishes to Tell You FREE How She Stopped Her Husband's Drinking

By All Means Write to Her and Learn How She Did It.



For over 20 years Andrew Sloan of 206 Elm Ave., Hillburn, N.Y., was a very hard drinker. His case seemed a hopeless one, but 20 years ago his wife, by their own little home, gave him a simple remedy which, much to her delight, stopped his drinking entirely.

To make sure that the remedy was responsible for this happy result, she also tried it on her brother and several of her neighbors. It was successful in every case. None of them has touched a drop of intoxicating liquor since.

She now wishes everyone who has drunkenness in their home to try this simple remedy, for she feels sure that it will do as much for others as it has for her. It can be given secretly if desired, and without cost she will gladly and willingly tell you what it is. All you have to do is write her a letter asking for her how she cured her husband of drinking and she will gladly send you a small in a sealed envelope. As she has nothing to sell, do not send any money. Simply send a letter with all confidence to Mrs. Margaret Anderson at the address given above, taking care to write your name and full address plainly.

STOMACH UPSET? SOUR? 'CASCARETS'

Gently cleanse and regulate your Stomach, Liver and Bowels while you sleep.

That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, feeling of fullness, dizziness and sick headache, mean a disordered stomach, which cannot be regulated until you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach's fault. Your stomach is as good as any.

Try Cascarets; they immediately cleanse the stomach, regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended. A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any druggist will keep your stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

THE EATON POISONING TRAGEDY AT A GLANCE

THE CHARGE.

Murder by poison (some form of arsenic.)

THE VICTIM.

Rear Admiral Joseph Giles Eaton, U. S. N., retired, sixty-six years old, twice married, and resident of Assinippi Village, in West Norwell, Plymouth County.

THE ACCUSED.

Mrs. Jennie May Harrison Ainsworth Eaton, forty-one years old, native of Alexandria, Va. Married (first) to D. H. Ainsworth of Washington, whom she divorced; (second) to Admiral Eaton, whom she is charged with poisoning.

THE FAMILY.

Mrs. George Harrison, aged mother of Mrs. Eaton and one of the principal inquest witnesses.

Mrs. Ralph P. Keyes, formerly Miss Jane Ainsworth, elder daughter of Admiral Eaton and bitterly opposed to him.

Miss Dorothy V. (Ainsworth) Eaton, younger daughter of Mrs. Eaton, and the Admiral's favorite.

THE PROSECUTION.

District Attorney Albert F. Barker of Plymouth County, resident of Brockton, who conducted the investigation and inquest which resulted in Mrs. Eaton's arrest.

THE DEFENCE.

Francis J. Geogan, Whitman attorney, called into the case while the inquest was on. Now Mrs. Eaton's attorney.

noted towards her in such a way that she was justified in fearing him. Mr. Thom said:

"My name has been mentioned in this case like many others. But thus far no one outside the family has stepped out of the ranks to speak in the family's behalf. I'm getting along in the sixties, but I'll look anybody straight in the eye.

"I say no living member of the Admiral's family is responsible for his death. I believe he died from his own personal use of drugs.

"His wife knew him and was deceived. Jane had reason to fear him. And she says she has often been deceived in him. He was a sick man when he came to Norwell. He had been almost forced out of the navy. He lost money speculating while he lived in Brookline.

"I have visited at his house. I have taken his children to ride as I have often taken hundreds of other children about the country.

Tells of Supposed Poison Pellet.

At one time Mrs. Eaton told me the neighbors remarked that I was too much in June's company. I told her I liked her like a grandfather would like her. June reciprocated the feeling. But if it "was to make trouble I never went near June was then fifteen or sixteen.

"I saw the family every week. I saw them before and after the baby was adopted. June thought that the baby was her own child. Dorothy, who was four years younger, was also apparently fooled.

"I didn't know and didn't ask any questions. I visited Mrs. Eaton in June when she was living at Weymouth after she had separated from the Admiral. I was there for quite a time. I also visited the Admiral at his home in Assinippi about the same time.

"From hints dropped by June and her mother I think June had reason to hate and fear him. She would not eat at home. She told me repeatedly the Admiral used poison. I thought she meant dope.

"She said she feared to eat at home, believing the Admiral might poison her. During the time the couple were separated I was told that June were living in Weymouth, I called on the latter. The Admiral had just left. Mrs. Eaton was taking up the bed he had slept in.

She found a pellet in the bedding as large as a small pea. She said it was one of the several that the Admiral carried around with him. She said she was sure it was poison. I suggested that she burn it. She did. June took the sugar bowl and salt cellar off the table and emptied them out in the backyard. She then threw dirt over their contents.

Says Admiral Threatened Him.

"The Admiral told me once that I called on his wife when he was away. He attempted to assault me in his own house. His wife stepped between us and asked me to leave the house.

I went out and waited on the veranda. June came out. She urged me to leave as the Admiral might follow her. I told her I wanted the Admiral to come out. He made me a half hour for him to come out.

Then I went down to the postoffice and waited for him. They told me down there that he had threatened to get a gun. I waited by the postoffice I drove up alongside of him on the road and said:

"Well, Eaton, have you got a gun?"

He kept right on walking. I stepped out of my wagon and challenged him to come back. He made no reply. If he had made a move for me or had made a move to attack me, I would have punched his head.

I never saw poison in the Admiral's house or in his possession. When all the facts in this case come to light, I shall not be surprised if it is shown that the Admiral used drugs as well as arsenic.

State Officer Scott and Deputy Sheriff Condon may call on Mr. Thom to find out what he knows about the Eaton family life.

WIFE CALLED EATON "SUBTLE MANIAC" IN LETTER 2 YEARS AGO

A letter, which throws new light on the domestic life of the Eaton family and which was written by Mrs. Jennie May Harrison Eaton, has been made public by Attorney Marshall E. Gallion of Chicago, who acted as counsel for Mrs. Eaton at the time she sued her first husband for divorce. The letter was written on March 15, 1911. It says:

The condition of this poor man is dreadful, he is so much worse, and I fear to stay here (his Winter. My leaving him alone with my mother while I was in Chicago made him weild. If I had a doubt of his insanity, which I never had, it would be removed quickly, as he is so much worse. And, what can I do?

He is a sick, helpless and sad old man and it goes to my heart. He relies on me entirely. I am his eyes, brain and life, and still how can I stay here alone and let him kill me and poor little innocent Dorothy, and he will do it. I am the wonder where we are. He is the most dangerous, subtle maniac and still I have no way of escape.

Public opinion, his rank, his age and the navy are all against me. All doctors are too diplomatic and afraid to attempt to deal with him as he should be dealt with, and it will cost me hundreds of dollars to get evidence and take a year at least to get it in shape and then I probably will be outwitted by sentiment and pity.

He is the most dangerous man you could meet any place.

Please help me. What shall I do? What do you advise me as the most practical? After Friday I shall be here alone with him. Is it wise? He is so subtle and wise. Would you get a common, cheap woman for just to have some one with me? Of course, such a person would not be able to detect his trouble. Only a person drilled to brain trouble or familiar with insanity.

If he is as dangerous as I believe, I must protect my life, so find out whether you can get me a weapon who is a Sherlock Holmes in criminal insanity and of highest moral character and help strengthen my own declarations, one whose word would go, if she said he was insane they would do the rest. Please see what you can do for me and advise me.

In going out this letter Attorney Gallion added that Mrs. Eaton during a visit to Chicago following her marriage to the Rear Admiral, had told him her husband was a strong devotee to the study of poisons. Mr. Gallion said:

Mrs. Eaton said that while in the South Seas in the navy, the Admiral had learned a lot of poison lore from the savages. She said he boasted of a poison he had brought from the South Sea Islands with him, an extract of the venom of a snake, and told her of a trick of carrying a tiny but deadly dose of it under the nail of his little finger. This, she said, he declared he could drop into a glass of water without detection.

Had Poison in Barn.

He told her, she said, that he had poisons hidden about the rafters of the house at Assinippi and about the barn.

Mrs. Eaton said that he often followed her about silent and cat-like and that sometimes when she was in town shopping or out on errands she would feel that he was about and turning would find the Admiral leering at her.

Chief among the witnesses for Mrs. Eaton at the time of the divorce trial was Mrs. Augusta B. Colburn, a stenographer who owned a house in Chicago, occupied at that time by Mr. and Mrs. Ainsworth. Mrs. Coulson said:

"I testified at the time Mrs. Ainsworth, now Mrs. Eaton, applied for her divorce. I probably knew her as well as anyone in Chicago. She made many warm friends. Ainsworth drank absinthe and took morphine. This was the charge in the divorce case."

Ainsworth is supposed to be about Chicago.

"I saw him a few months ago," said Mr. Gallion, "and he looked like a wreck."

MRS. EATON WRITES DAUGHTERS THAT SHE "WILL BE HOME SOON"

Holy Saturday, the day when the Christian world is sack cloth and ashes awaits expectantly the glorious dawn of joyous Easter Sunday, brought little of comfort or consolation to Mrs. Jennie May Eaton when she awoke in her room in the Plymouth Jail today. The calm stoicism, which has carried her through the trying ordeals of the week, helps her to appear brave to the sheriff and other jail officials, with whom she comes in contact. It is this stoicism which helps her to appear calm and resigned and even smile at times as she says to the matron:

"I think this is only a temporary arrangement—my being here. I know I shall be out of here in a few days at the most."

In maintaining her self restraint Mrs. Eaton finds great comfort in the literature provided by the prison library.

"Bring me plenty to read, won't you?" she tells the matron.

Then she adds:

I never did care for light literature. The novels of the present day I never read. I like Jane Austin and George Eliot and Jane Eyre. There is something in those books

But above all I feel I must have exercise in the open air. I have always been an active woman and I must get out into the open.

I don't fear to sit in this room and do nothing but read. I wish you would let me begin today to help the matron sew something. I can help on the pillow cases and also in mending the suits of the men. I wish I could have some of this work to take up my time.

As soon as Mrs. Eaton made this request she was set at work mending the prisoners' uniforms and making pillow slips.

Attired in the blue polka dot wrapper furnished her by the matron, Mrs. Eaton was soon at work. She seemed to enjoy the diversion afforded by the sewing.

Writes to Her Daughters.

She was allowed no exercise in the large washroom, sometimes called the sun parlor. This room is a large one, measuring fifty by thirty feet, and is one of the most cheerful in the jail.

When this room she would be allowed to roam at will in this room until better arrangements could be made, Mrs. Eaton thanked the sheriff for his kindness and appeared quite contented.

For her dinner Mrs. Eaton was served the regular Cape Cod fish dinner. This consisted of salt fish soaked out in water, and boiled with potatoes. It was served with pork scraps. With it she had bread and coffee. She ate heartily and seemed to relish her dinner. In the afternoon she received calls from Attorneys Geogan and Kelly with whom she held long consultations.

After the lawyers left Mrs. Eaton had for supper a hash made from the remains of the dinner. During the day she wrote two letters, one to her daughter, June, and another to Dorothy. To June she wrote:

My Dear June;

I know you know I am innocent of this horrible charge they have made against me and I feel that I will be out of here in a few days. Be sure to comfort mother in her trouble and watch over Dorothy until I get back.

I feel sure I will be back with you all in a few days at the most. I am sorry I can not see you and that it is so far down here from home. I know you and Dorothy know I am innocent and will be with you soon.

DETECTIVES BEND NEW EFFORT TO FIND TRACES OF POISON

State Officer Scott and Deputy Sheriff Condon renewed their search for poison on the Eaton premises at Assinippi today, with intention to dig through the ashbeep and even to plow some of the land, if necessary. Scott said:

"We are going to dig around a bit more. We may dig over the asp-heap and around back of the buildings—we may even have to plow up."

Meanwhile the outside search for any poison was bearing on the Eaton case was continued more vigorously than before. State Officer Scott asked for more men. Chief Whitney of the State police sent a detail of officers to Plymouth County. These new men on the case spent the day in visiting Plymouth County drug stores, beginning at those nearest Assinippi which so far have not been visited. Scott and Condon had previously searched "poison sale" records in Brockton and Rockland drug stores.

Mother and Daughters of Accused Woman Among Those Who Will Testify.

It is now known that, when Dr. Joseph Frame and Medical Examiner Gilman Osgood came to the Eaton home after the Admiral's death, there was nothing about the body or its surroundings to indicate poison.

Dr. Osgood, in his capacity of medical examiner, began to ask questions of members of the Eaton family.

Some answer that was made to him led him to perform an autopsy on the Admiral's body and to despatch the stomach to Professor W. F. Whitney of Harvard Medical School for chemical analysis.

The members of the household at that time included Mrs. Eaton, Mrs. George Harrison, Dorothy Ainsworth Eaton and Mrs. Mary Keene, who was then helping in the housework.

Francis J. Geogan went to Plymouth today for another conference with Mrs. Eaton. This was the third time that the accused woman and her counsel had conferred on the case. Mrs. Eaton lent no time, after her arrest, in sending for Mr. Geogan and she has practically appointed herself since she arrived at Plymouth jail to planning her defence with Mr. Geogan.

In connection with the discussion of Admiral Eaton's habits, a story came from Lowell today which indicates that he was not an excessive or careless drinker. Several years ago the Admiral paid a score of other naval officers tested a new explosive at Varnum's Landing on the Merrimac River. It was a bitterly cold day and all the officers except Admiral Eaton forthwith repaired to the whiskey. The Admiral refused the liquor, though urged to drink. He was in charge of the inspection, and later reported adversely on the explosive which was being tested.

Strange Parallel in Abandoned Waifs of Parallel Street

At the same hour of the night, on the same back-doorstep and under exactly similar circumstances that a little boy was left at their home eight years ago, a pretty three-weeks' old baby girl was discovered on the step of the home of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Jones, No. 7 Parallel street, Arlington, last night.

By a strange twist of fate the baby girl was found by Chester Jones, who eight years ago, when a boy in school, discovered the little boy on his father's doorstep. Chester Jones is married now and lives next door to his father's home.

Like the boy eight years ago the infant picked up last night was wrapped in a man's overcoat. It was neatly dressed, and like its predecessor on the doorstep was contently chewing the rubber of a nursing bottle, filled with warm milk. The child was taken to the Arlington Symond Hospital by Officer Irwin and Dr. Harold L. Webb. Today it was sent to the state Board of Charity, where the baby boy of eight years ago was sent.

The clothes of both children were of excellent texture, but all marks of identification had been cut off.

STATE CONFERENCE ON TUBERCULOSIS

HOLYOKE, March 22.—The fifth annual session of the Massachusetts State Conference on tuberculosis began in this city today in the hall of the public library. A large attendance of members was present. After introductory remarks by the chairman of the local committee, Dr. Carl A. Allen, the conference was taken in charge by the presiding officer, Rev. William B. Geoghegan, of New Bedford. Dr. Allen G. Rice, president of the Springfield Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, read a paper on "Open Window Schoolrooms."

TUFTS LIABILITIES $177,773; NO ASSETS

Schedules of liabilities of Nathan Tufts & Sons of Boston, for many years conducting business as grain merchants, against whom creditors recently filed an involuntary petition in bankruptcy before the referee in bankruptcy, show liabilities of $177,773 and no assets. Nathan Tufts, a member of the firm, files an individual schedule showing liabilities of $120,663 and no assets. Charles E. Fitz, also a partner in the firm, files an individual schedule showing liabilities of $20,000 and no assets.

DENY APPLICATION OF WRIT FOR ALLEN

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Chief Justice White of the Supreme Court today denied an application for a writ of error directed to the Supreme Court of Virginia to bring before the United States Supreme Court for a review the case of Floyd and Claude Allen, who were convicted of murdering Judge Thornton L. Massie in their raid on the Hillsville courthouse on March 14, 1912.

MAY TAX ALL INCOMES THAT EXCEED $4.000

WASHINGTON, March 22.—A 2 per cent. tax may be levied by Congress on the excess of incomes over 4,000 a year, under the authority of new income tax amendment.

This means that a Congressman, upon his salary of $7,500 a year, would have to pay to the government in personal taxes 2 per cent. on $3,500, or $70 a year. The man with an income of $5,000 a year would have to pay $20, while a $100,000 income would pay $1,820. A man with a bank account drawing 2 per cent. would have to surrender all his interest over the minimum to the government. Corporations are taxed 2 per cent. on their net profit, under existing law. This has yielded a revenue of $27,000,000 a year, which will be lost under the general income tax law.

Chairman Underwood of the Ways and Means Committee conferred today with Representative Hull, who has been delegated to write the new income tax law. It is feared the cuts in the tariff contemplated under the new rates will result in a loss of revenues of more than $150,000,000. The income tax must supply the deficit.

On the most careful figures, Mr. Hull cannot see more than $100,000,000 revenue from a 1 per cent. income tax on incomes in excess of $5,000.

Persuades Bride to Stick 5 Years More on Hike Tour

PROVIDENCE, March 22.—Mrs. H. G. A. Hassler, who is on a five-year-honeymoon walk with her husband, decided today that she would continue her walking at least for a while—though at heart she would gladly quit.

Mrs. Hassler is seventeen years old; her husband is twenty-five. She is ready to abandon the trip, but her husband persuaded her to continue the trams. They expect to leave Providence Monday.

Hassler admits that it takes almost all his time to cheer his bride when their ears on the hike. He is afraid her courage will desert her despite all he can do and that she will go back to her folks in New Brunswick.

She Darkened Her Gray Hair

A Kansas City Lady Darkened Her Gray Hair and Stimulated Its Growth by a Simple Home Process.

She Tells How She Did It.

Mrs. A. Riggan, a well known resident of Kansas City, Mo., who darkened her gray hair by a simple home process, made the following statement: "Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray or faded hair, stimulate its growth and make it soft and glossy with this simple recipe, which they can mix at home: To half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently, then every two weeks. This mixture relieves any scalp trouble and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair. It does not stain the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off. It will make a gray haired person look 10 to 20 years younger." Advertisement.

PRISON ANGEL TELLS WHY SOME GIRLS GO WRONG

By SYBIL WARNE.

What makes girls go wrong?

Mrs. Florence Spooner, the "Prison Angel" of Massachusetts, says:

"We drive women often to wrong by our selfishness and it is our selfishness that keeps them down.

"Many women in prison are objects to be pitied rather not to be frowned upon.

"Give them steady work and a decent wage and you will see changes in the ranks of women who are doing wrong."

J. Prentice Murphy of the Children's Aid Society says:

"A good home with good surroundings is the best protection for a girl."

Miss Mabelle S. Blake says:

"Insufficient education. Learn a trade and keep from evil."

Miss Grace Kroll, Boston, social worker and Smith College graduate, explains it as "lack of will power and home influence."

Kindness a Big Factor.

Mrs. Florence Spooner, leader of the movement for prison reform and the abolition of capital punishment, is well known as an active worker among the women prisoners. Kind words and interest do much to keep people and especially young girls from going wrong, according to this social worker.

"Many girls go wrong in this city because they find it so hard to get along on the wages that they get. I don't like to say that poverty makes a young girl go wrong, but it has a strong influence that way," said Mrs. Spooner.

"Give young women good wages. Give them steady employment. Give them recreations. Give them good fellowship and you will see a great change in many ways.

Unjust to Women.

For young women to live right it is necessary for them to have regular employment. A young woman who only has work every other week, it may be, will sooner or later be tempted.

"I have seen women in tears in prison telling me their misfortunes and how they came to fall. They want somebody to talk to them. Many of them, I believe, do not intend to go wrong, but it is our social conditions. Women find it so hard to get along and men, generally speaking, have less scruples than ever of being just to women.

"My prison experience in coming in contact with many women has taught me this, that there are very few who are unwilling to see matters in higher light if you give them the opportunity to keep there.

"What I have seen convinces me also again and again that we drive women often to wrong by our selfishness, and then we are selish to keep them there afterwards. To me so many women in prison are objects to be pitied when you get at the heart of their difficulty. A kind word and interest might have saved many."

IMPRESSIONS OF MOTOR TRUCK EXPERTS CAUGHT AT BIG EXHIBIT BY CARTOONIST IGOE

MANY SALES REPORTED AT TRUCK SHOW

By J. C. KERRIBON.

Tonight will mark the close of the first period of the motor truck show, now being held in Mechanics' Building, and if today is in keeping with the two that have gone before in the way of sales and interest there will be few of the exhibitors who will have cause to regret their appearance at the Boston exhibition.

There has been something doing in the matter of sales each day of the week. The number of prospects secured by the exhibitors is far in excess of that of a year ago and, according to those who are in a position to know, are equally as numerous as at the Chicago exhibit, which was attended by farmers and business men of the Middle West.

Performances Sell Trucks.

The dealers and makers appreciate that the Boston show gives them an entre into the New England district that is fruitful of results, and they are planning greater activity at the close of the show, for they propose to carry the campaign of motor truck transportation right to the very doors of the factories and large business houses of New England.

To demonstrate the efficiency of a truck is vastly different from that of a pleasure vehicle. With a pleasure vehicle one takes a ride over the best of roads and up grades, but with a truck the prospective purchaser usually requests the complication of its ability by a two hours' use under actual business conditions, such as would exist if the vehicle were placed in the service of the company investigating.

This means that the demonstrating vehicles are in operation far removed from the exhibition hall, that they are traversing the city streets perhaps from terminal to terminal or from wharf to storage warehouse. They make note of the time spent in loading and unloading and in making the trip from point to point, together with the consumption of gasoline and lubricating oil and then they sit down and figure the cost of haulage per ton per mile.

The motor truck is purchased on a different basis from a pleasure vehicle. It is not in its appearance, but rather in its performance that a truck is sold.

This is abundantly proven by the character of the attendance at the show during the morning and afternoon sessions when business men, truckmen and merchants look over the field and inspect the vehicles at their leisure.

"The greatest argument that can be used in favor of any one truck outside of its mechanical construction," said one man, "is the ability to prove by actual records that the truck can perform the work desired at a fair and reasonable cost. This is usually proven by the records obtained from some business house or other that has had a truck in operation for a period of time."

Many Officials Attend.

The attendance of city and town officials seems to be increasing daily. They seemingly come for the purpose of inspecting the large variety of fire fighting apparatus to be found in this show. These officials carefully examine every piece of apparatus in the building, and one fire yesterday was successful in taking an order for a six-cylinder combination wagon that has occupied a prominent position in the building. The fire apparatus is always attractive as are likewise the vehicles constructed especially for hospital uses.

The light delivery wagons, to be found in great numbers in the show, do not seem to attract so much attention, excepting from those who are looking for something in that line, as do some of the other displays. The great massive trucks of five or more ton load capacity seem to possess the greatest attraction. People stand and look at these vehicles with awe and wonderment. The very size of their bodies, which dwarf the smaller vehicles, seems to impress the visitor with the greatness of the commercial vehicle industry more than does any other line of trucks shown.

Makers Differ as to Location of Driver's Seat

Manufacturers differ widely as to the correct location of the driver's seat on a motor truck, and even among those who agree the full bonds of their designs are not always realized. The main questions involved are the distribution of the load weight, the effect on tires and the ease or difficulty of control.

In White gasoline trucks, the greatest proportion of the load is carried on the rear, or driving wheels, affording the greatest amount of traction at all times and allowing the front wheels to turn easily, which permits the driver to control the truck perfectly even in difficult situations.

This distribution of load saves the front tires from the grinding effect of front wheels that are turned under heavy load and reduces wear on the steering mechanism.

TELLS WHY STEEL WHEELS PROVE BEST

"Because pleasure cars were developed first and trucks second, it has only been natural," says Frank B. Crockett, truck sales manager of he Locomobile Company of Boston, "that certain traditions of design should be found on trucks, for no other reason than that touring cars have been designed that way. This is about the only excuse for the use of wooden wheels on trucks.

"Why should we take fifty pieces of wood and bolt, glue and dovetail them together, when we can cast a wheel in one piece which will be both lighter and stronger than the old-fashioned wooden wheel? A wooden wheel contains about half as much steel in the shape of tires, nuts, bolts and hubs as there is in a steel wheel. A wooden wheel is more or less of a make-shift and must be reinforced with steel construction in order to stand any kind of hard service.

"Even then the life of a wooden wheel is comparatively short, for it is subject to weather conditions, will swell and get out of shape, presenting flat surfaces which pound the tire on the road and wear it out in places. Wood will expand when moist. The steel wheel, on the other hand, presents none of the disadvantages of the wooden wheel. It is strong, light, is made in one piece; it is an absolutely perfect circle because it is machined on a lathe and cannot be otherwise. It never warps nor gets out of shape, and always presents a round-tire surface to the road.

Goodyear Truck Tires Built for American Roads

"Goodyear Motor Truck tires are built expressly and solely for American use—for American streets and roads, for American drivers—for American motor truck owners who demand the limit of profit from every dollar put into truck equipment," says C. W. Martin, manager of the motor truck tire department of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, Akron, O.

"They were built by American engineers, not because of sentiment or personal preference, but because one good American engineer knows more about American motor truck tires for American use than all foreign tire makers combined.

"That is why the services of American tire engineers and designers are, and in all probability always will be, at a premium in this country.

"Surely no one wants a tire that attempts to adapt itself to any car, or any road in any country. No more than one would employ as a salesman a man who professed to be an expert mechanic, a brilliant salesman, an experienced cost accountant and business epistemitizer and a legal adviser. The desirable man is he who is specially instructed for a particular line of work; the desirable tire is the tire which is especially constructed for your particular needs."

Among other sales closed by George H. Hudson of the Alco were one three and one-half-ton to the J. K. & B. Sears & Co., lumber dealers in South Hyannis; the Hopkins & Remington Company of Fall River, a three and one-half-tonner, and the National Wholesale Grocery Company of Fall River, a three-tonner.

SHOW NOTES

Assistant Advertising Manager Arthur Bapetti of the American Locomotive Company, makers of the Alco pleasure and commercial vehicles, who has been in attendance at the show since its opening, says that it is one of the best that has been held on the circuit and the interest to equal to that shown at the Chicago show.

Sales Manager Lindorfer of the Atterbury Truck Company arrived in Boston yesterday and immediately began looking up the Atterbury display which somehow or other had come but en route. So energetic was Mr. Lindorfer that he not only found the exhibit in a freight yard, but he completed arrangements whereby it was placed in position on the floor of Mechanics' Hall before the closing of the afternoon session.

From the Autocar booth at the motor truck show comes the announcement of closing an order during he early part of the show for ten additional Autocars for the American Express Company. The consistent service which the Autocar has given this concern prompted their placing a re-order.

A feature of the display of G. M. C. gasoline trucks in Mechanics Building is the new one-ton truck to which a special pressed steel express body is fitted. According to the manufacturers this body is built of hollow pressed steel parts which are electrically welded, making a unit of the frame work, consisting practically of one piece of steel without joints or seams. The panels are electrically welded and hot-pierced into place. The floor is also of steel, corrugated, so that it is exceptionally rigid and will not dent under hard usage.

Truck Flourishes Because It Saves Money and Time

By GEORGE H. HUDSON.

(Manager of Alco Boston Branch.)

Selling a motor truck is a far different matter from selling a motor car, though this fact has only of late been appreciated. A different type of salesman is required because the business man or company that replaces horses with motor trucks does so because shown the economy of such a move. The sporting or pleasure element is entirely removed.

It is needless, for instance, to attempt to convince a man who can handle deliveries with a one-horse wagon that he needs a five-ton motor truck. On the other hand it is clear that a concern with four horses or more may profitably purchase a motor truck of two tons capacity or greater.

Here is where the knowledge of the modern motor truck salesman comes into play. It is for him to study the transportation system of the concern in question. Then it is for him to recommend the size truck needed, the type of body and any special time saving devices that may be judged necessary.

The motor truck has survived and flourished because it is a saver of money and a saver of time and labor, which of course, means money to a business house. It is an economic necessity in transportation just as much as factory machinery is an economic necessity in manufacturing.

LOSES COURT FIGHT FOR RELEASE FROM TUBERCULOSIS CAMP

Andrew McCarthy of Vernon street, Haverhill, must remain in the custody of that city as a tuberculosis patient, as Justice Braley in the Supreme Court denied his effort to secure liberty by habeas corpus proceedings.

Soup nearly every day of the week and bowling in old voting booths with but one window open is what the city of Haverhill provides for its consumptives at its city farm and hospital, McCarthy said.

The question whether any Board of Health has a right to deprive any man of his liberty without a court trial, just because he has a contagious disease, was the main issue in the case.

"Personally Conducted" Excursions to California

Are you going to California? Do you want to be extra comfortable on the trip at no extra cost?

Would you like to have a first rate, good-natured, thoroughly competent and well informed conductor to go all the way through on the trip with you, a man who is specially selected, and paid by our Railroad Company to look after your comfort?

Such a man goes through with each of our "Personally Conducted" parties. We choose men specially fitted for this work. Men who are courteous and kindly, who have made the trip many times and understand the art of making people comfortable.

Just call or write and let me tell you all about our personally conducted tours to California that have helped to make Burlington Route service famous.

Goodyear Truck Tires Lead

At the Mechanics Building more commercial vehicles are equipped with Goodyear tires than with any other make.

So it is at every leading show. At the New York and Chicago shows, Goodyear led by an overwhelming majority.

It is estimated that over sixty per cent. of the trucks made during 1913 will go out from truck factories with Goodyear equipment.

All this is the result of making a special tire for every service. Thus have users been enabled to select the tire best adapted to their particular needs.

A Tire For Every Service

Goodyear Solid Demountable 10,000 Mile Tire

A tire that abolishes the need of a tire applying station—a tire that is good enough to deserve a specific guaranty. This is the most serviceable tire for heavy duty trucks and meets the requirements of those who want a tire that can be easily put on and taken off.

Goodyear Demountable Cushion Truck Tire

Combines resiliency and durability. With its double notched treads, attains the utmost non-skid properties. This tire is demountable and fits S. A. E. Standard Wheel.

Goodyear Solid Metal-Base Truck Tire

Designed for heavy service, where truck owners are in close touch with tire applying stations and do not wish the Demountable feature.

Goodyear Solid Side Flange Truck Tire

This tire was designed as a "fixed on" type whose application is practicable to the S. A. E. wheel, and also for use wherever the "fixed on" type is preferred to demountable.

GOODYEAR AKRON, OHIO

Goodyear Individual Block Truck Tire

Specially adapted to heavy duty trucks that require exceptional traction and non-skid feature on rear wheels. The advantage of this tire is that, if a block is damaged, it can readily be replaced.

Goodyear Solid No-Rim-Cut Truck Tire

Possesses unusual resiliency for a solid tire. Thus it protects the car from violent strains and shocks of rough roads.

Goodyear Clincher Truck Tire

For light package delivery wagons or high speed trucks equipped with standard pneumatic clincher rims. Guaranty 8,000 miles—9 months.

HARVARD TRACK TEAM FAVORITE FOR BIG GAMES

By THOMAS J. HALPIN.
(Quarter-Mile Champion of United States and Canada.)

The Harvard track team will have the services of some of the best athletes that have ever represented the Crimson when the big Intercollegiate meet takes place in the Harvard Stadium on May 29 and 30.

At the present time it is hard to figure how any college can defeat the aggregation of track stars from across the Charles. There is a wealth of good material for every event as many of the men who were point winners last year have returned to college and will be members of this year's team. These men have all completed indoors and are in fair condition while the star cross-country team of last year is training daily for the distance runs in the annual blue ribbon and dual meets.

Penn Athletes Dangerous.

Harvard will have the added advantage over its most formidable rival Pennsylvania by competing on its own track. Of all the colleges that loom up dangerously for the premier college track honors, Pennsylvania with its wealth of stars in the sprints and field events appears to have the call.

The greatest possible scar that Harvard has enrolled in its fold is without doubt William Barron, the double-footed runner, who should be the sensation of the year in college athletic circles. He has already covered the quarter-mile distance in the fast time of 49 1-5 seconds, in one of last year's dual meets.

May Do 48 Seconds.

This is his junior year at college and his third year in-track athletics and with the experience gained indoors he should develop into a wonderful quarter-miler and should cover the distance in close to 48 seconds.

In addition to Barron, Cable is looked upon as a sure point winner in more than one event. Last year he developed rapidly into a fine broad jumper besides being a good hammer thrower and a fair shot putter. Harvard will rely on him in these events in the Intercollegiate meet and also in the Oxford-Cambridge meet if this event takes place as has been proposed.

It is to be regretted that Lawless is running the mile distance. It would be a fine idea to transfer him to the two-mile event for the large meets for with Jones and Taber fighting it out for the premier honors and with Dartmouth's star entered it seems almost impossible for any other athlete to place in this race.

MANDOT IS OUT OF BATTLE FOR RITCHIE TITLE

By ED. W. SMITH.

If is the "Big Four" among the lightweights no longer. Joe Mandot went and got himself licked in his first scrap under the management of Tommy Walsh, who took up the doughty French Market boy with a great flourish of trumpets. Now he will have a hard struggle battling his way back among the real aspirants of the 133 pound class of pugilism.

Inasmuch as Joe Rivers recently beat Cross in a ten-round scrap in New York city, the defeat of Mandot at the hands of Cross removes the Southerner from all consideration, for the time being at least.

It was his second defeat in a little over three months, Joe Rivers having squelched him out Los Angeles way last Thanksgiving day.

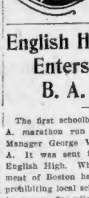
For months the Big Four among the lightweights had things pretty much to themselves as far as five-figure purses were concerned. Ad Wolgast and Willie Ritchie were considered the real topliners, with Joe Rivers, because of his queer defeat at the hands of Wolgast, and Joe Mandot, on his victory over Rivers in their last meeting, close up in the running.

Now that Mandot has been put out of it, however, there is still a chance that we can make a Big Four of the division.

It takes but little stretch of imagination to bring Tommy Murphy, of Harlem, Jim Buckley's good breadwinner, right up into the favored trio that remains.

Pilgrims in Second at Atlanta Brown and Hess to Work Today

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.



ATLANTA, Ga., March 22.—In polite society conversation, bearing on and appertaining to the weather, is taboo, as every one knows. But weather has so much to do with the conditioning of a ball club on a Southern training trip that it must necessarily be dwelt upon in these dispatches.

To be brief about it, however, it may be stated that the Boston National League players rolled into Atlanta like a display of Tomasso E. Powers' glooms. They were headed by "Big Chief Gloom" Stallings. From the moment the squad left Athens a fierce rainstorm beat upon the window panes of the passenger coach in which the dismal Boston outfit rode.

The subdued but heartfelt swearing of Stallings came near withering the interior of the car.

Secretary Nickerson, whose patience is apt to be tried when things do not go smoothly, looked as dark as the thunder clouds without. The players cursed their ill luck, the war correspondents were serene.

Then the Sun Came Forth.

As soon as the squad reached Atlanta the rain ceased. The sun came out brightly. The little sunbeam joys put the gloome to rout. Everybody was happy. The Boston players could hardly wait for dinner hour. (They never can).

Then, with a full supply of fodder aboard, they donned their spangles and drove in a bus to the ball field. A fine batting practice followed.

The fielding practice was lightning fast. Then as a windup the tailend Boxerers met the tail-end Southerners in a furious diamond battle, winning 7 to 6. Proof a stormy opening the day ended in a blaze of warm glory and the Boston men put the best and most satisfactory workout they had enjoyed for two weeks.

This afternoon the second game between the Boston and Atlanta teams will be played. Buster Brown and Hess will probably work on the mound for our fellows, with Drummond Brown on the receiving end.

The team that Stallings put in the field against Atlanta is not as strong as he could muster. He elect to playing Maranville at short in place of Bues is to give the little fellow confidence, especially at bat. It would be hard to find a more clever fielder than the "rabbit," but he doesn't look impressive at the plate.

I would guess that Bues will be the regular shortstop when the season opens, but by this I do not mean to underrate the little fellow's ability. The outfield, as Stallings sensed it, did not include Jackson in the lineup. This player, when he is right, is a first-class outfielder and he can hit the ball. Atlanta is trying hard to induce Stallings to sell them Jay Kirke, but thus far the Boston manager has given the Southern club little encouragement.

Pilgrims Still Lack Finish.

The Boston team did not look any too good when the Atlantas were scoring runs. No team ever does when the opponents are sending men over the plate, but "or all that they played a fairly tight game. McKechnie, after misjudging a fly ball over his head early in the game, made up for it by taking a very hard fly running backward.

Calhoun, the Georgia College first baseman, after making a good catch of a foul, squarely muffed another. These mackups, while they cost nothing, showed that the Pilgrims are not a finished team. Calhoun did not figure well at the bat. Twice he had chances to drive in runs, but once he popped a fly and the same, when he struck out. He was plainly over anxious. It was an important game to him. When he has been under fire awhile longer, he will probably show to better advantage. Bob "Grunt" Perdue got a fine workout in the box. He did well for three innings, but in the fourth the Atlanta players straightened out everything he had to offer and scored four runs before the side was retired.

Tyler, who pitched the last five innings, was somewhat wild and effective. The local umpire did not give Boston any the best of it, but this is to be expected. Perhaps my referring to the matter again, but I would like to say that it has turned warm at last and from now on our boys ought to improve fast.

Mitchell's Men Get Workout.

The players left behind at Athens in charge of Fred Mitchell managed to get a workout during the afternoon, so Stallings was informed by telephone. A Boston "fan," name unknown, who says he attends all games at both Boston ball grounds appeared at Athens a few days ago.

He is a silent man and the players call him "mysterious." He came over to Atlanta with the team, traveling in the same coach but not saying a word to anybody. He is stopping at the same hotel with the players and will return to Athens with them tonight.

The professional hockey series, which opens tonight at the Boston Arena between the Tecumsehs of Toronto and the New Glasgows of Nova Scotia should be a real battle royal.

In previous years the Canadian professional teams which have played here have been members of the same league, and their game lacked the deep feeling of rivalry which will mark tonight's contest.

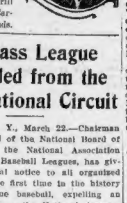
Not only is there great rivalry between the National Hockey Association, of which the Tecumseh is a member, and the Maritime Provinces Hockey Association, which includes the New Glasgow team, but the feeling between these particular teams is most bitter.

The men will go on the ice ready to wipe out chess old scores, and local Canadian-American. "fans," who know the hockey situation to the land across the border realize there will be something doing every minute after the starting whistle blows tonight.

The Canadian style of game with only six men on each team will be played, and another feature of the contest will be that it will consist of three periods of twenty minutes each as distinguished from the American style of two halves of twenty or twenty-five minutes duration. Dr. George W. Tingley will be one of the officials and the other will be selected tonight.

Red Sox Tackle Pirates Again Both Teams Anxious to Win Today

By L. R. MURDOCH.



HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 22.—After a day off from baseball playing, the Red So xattempted again today to play off the game with the Pirates postponed from yesterday. Jake Stahl said that he would probably use "Dutch" Leonard and Foster, just as he intended yesterday, but that he might also give "Buck" O'Brien his first trial. Both the Red Sox and Pirates were happy when yesterday's game was postponed, because both teams complained of being hanged up.

The Pirates had Byrne, Butler and McCarty actually out of the game and neither Larry Gardner nor Hugh Bedient was in shape to play for the Red Sox. Besides those on the hospital list, both teams had a bunch of men whose muscles were sore and who had tired of the grill room. You follows do not go to work until half past three in the afternoon then you get home for supper and nothing to do from October to March." Which will teach the schoolboy the philosophy that it's just as hard to get up at 8 p. m. as at 7 a. m. Notwithstanding these complaints of soreness and tired feeling, Stahl took his men on a long hike over the mountains yesterday afternoon and Fred Clarke made his men go out to Whittington Park for practice.

Both Stahl and Clarke had to refuse to listen to sore feet and lame side stories and had almost all of their squads out for work. Stahl said that he might try another shift at shortstop this afternoon, trying Janvrin in that place and playing Henri himself.

Clyde Engle has not been in the game yet and it can be guessed that if Stahl can qualify a bunch of younger infield ease Engle may be held ready for a trade. The aim is to get a man who can fit into Heinie Wagner's shoes and to carry as few infield subs as the team can get along with.

President McAleer of the Red Sox said today that he doubted if Wagner would play. Cahoon will be the Cincinnati series just before the opening of the league season.

RAIN AGAIN STOPS DODGERS' PRACTICE

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 22.—Rain put an end to all outdoor work after the Superbas had been in Warren Park for half an hour yesterday. Some of the players had to remain in the clubhouse for a couple of hours before they could get back to their hotel. This caused Manager Dahlen to fail back on the local Y. M. C. A. where the players spent nearly three hours in exercise. The game with Newark scheduled for today has been called off.

English High Boy Enters for Big B. A. A. Marthon

The first schoolboy entry for the B. A. A. marathon run has been received by Manager George V. Brown of the B. A. A. It was sent in by B. G. Macey of English High. While the hygiene department of Boston has never adopted a rule prohibiting local schoolboys from competing in twenty-five-mile races, it is reported that the department will forbid any entries in this long grind.

Sam Pavitt of the North Dorchester A. A. is another who has filed his entry. Pavitt is a clever long distance plodder and with the many other entries from this crack club will have plenty of intimate company on the run from Ashland.

Tom Dwyer of the Mohawk A. C., New York, was another heady distance man from Gotham to enter. Many more entries from New York are expected. It is doubtful if Mike Ryan of the Irish-American A. C. will enter again this year.

Mike won the event in record-breaking time last year and feels that he has captured about all the laurels the Unicorn classic has to offer. However, there are many friends of the Marathon champion who believe he will compete in the grind this year after all.

BASEBALL SCHEDULE FOR PUTNAM HIGH

PUTNAM, March 22.—Manager Gilbert Perry and Captain Ralph Boissoneau of the Putnam High School baseball team announce the following schedule of games for the year:

April 4, Putnam Clerks at Putnam; April 11, Worcester High at Worcester; April 18, Lexington High at Putnam; April 25, Worcester Academy at Worcester; May 2, Norwich Free Academy at Putnam; May 10, Windham High at Willimantic; May 16, Killingly High at Danielson; May 18, Worcester Business Institute at Putnam; May 23, Pomfret Academy at Pomfret; May 30, St. John High of Worcester at Putnam; June 7, Windham High at Putnam; June 10, Woonsocket High at Putnam.

PENN NINE TO PLAY ANNAPOLIS TODAY

ANNAOLIS, March 22.—Coach Roy Thomas of the University of Pennsylvania's baseball team has announced that Sayre has been selected to pitch in their opening contest with the Naval Academy's nine today. Captain Harry Imlay will do the twirling in the game with Yale on Monday at Washington

The squad, accompanied by Coach Thomas, Theodore Brown, chairman of the baseball committee, and nearly a hundred rooters arrived here today.

ARMY AND NAVY MAY PLAY IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, March 22.—The next Army-Navy football game will probably be played in this city. Representatives of West Point and Annapolis are now in town consulting with the management of the Polo Grounds for the use of the Bronx Stadium for that purpose.

Baseball News and Chatter

President McAleer of the Red Sox has completed nearly a score of offers for exhibition games with the Sox. The Sox leader does not believe in such games after the regular season has started.

Frank Metz, who is making a strong bid for first base at the Athens camp, of the Pilgrims, is a product of the Texas League.

* * *

Hughey Jennings, the hustling leader of the Tigers, has already formed an opinion on the American League race this season. He thinks the Red Sox and Athletics will fight it out for first place, with the Senators third and his own team fourth.

* * *

George Foster, who according to reports from the South, looks like the most promising of the Red Sox recruit pitchers, was with the Browns several years ago.

Hub Perdue, who was the best pitcher on the Pilgrims last year, is a bit worried. Hub is steadily gaining in weight and since he reported he has taken on eleven pounds.

* * *

There is a chance that Ira Hogue will remain with the Pilgrims. While he may not make good as a pitcher, he has taken Stallings' eye as an outfield possibility and with few gardeners in the Pilgrims squad he may be kept on this account.

* * *

Clark Griffith makes his catchers and pitchers feed grapes for half an hour every day to reduce their weight. And, oh, how they do love it! Nix!

Hughie Jennings expected to pick up four pitchers, two outfielders, an infielder and two catchers from his band of recruits this year. That's going some, even for him.

* * *

According to the baseball experts, Jim Thorpe, the Indian on McGraw's staff, has all the speed that is necessary and only needs technique to become a star.

* * *

Some doings around New York if Chance and McGraw should win the pennants in their respective leagues, and reports from Bermuda are very encouraging.

Among other unique rules brought out by Manager Stovall is one declaring that he men shall wear "white collars and boiled shirts" at the hotel. Some dudes, eh?

Blue Grass League Expelled from the National Circuit

AUBURN, N. Y., March 22.—Chairman John H. Farrell of the National Board of Arbitration of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, has given out a special notice to all organized baseball, for the first time in the history of minor league baseball, expelling an entire league from the National Association.

Mr. Farrell said:

The officials of the Blue Grass League having publicly and officially made known their determination to violate the national agreement, this league, after a fair notification to its league president and a wire notice to its club members, has had its membership fee returned and its reserved players declared free agents. The National Association must abide by the Provisions of Article 5, Section 3 of its contract with the major leagues, the national agreement.

FLOAT LAUNCHED AT EXETER ACADEMY; BOOM FOR ROWING

EXETER, N. H., March 22.—The float of the Academy boat house has been launched and crew candidates will soon begin work. For the first time since the early days of rowing has been recognized by the school athletic association as a minor sport under the direction of T. R. Aldrich, '13, as manager, and R. W. Price, '14, assistant manager. About thirty boys elected rowing as their sport last Fall, when considerable developing work was done under the direction of Instructor E. P. J. Burpee, a former Harvard oarsman.

The equipment at the boat house will comprise two four-oar barges, the gift of the Harvard Athletic Association, and a four-cared shell. There are also privately owned canoes. On May 24 at Concord, Mass., Exeter will meet Middlesex School in a single shell race, which is expected to be the first in a series alternating between Concord and Exeter.

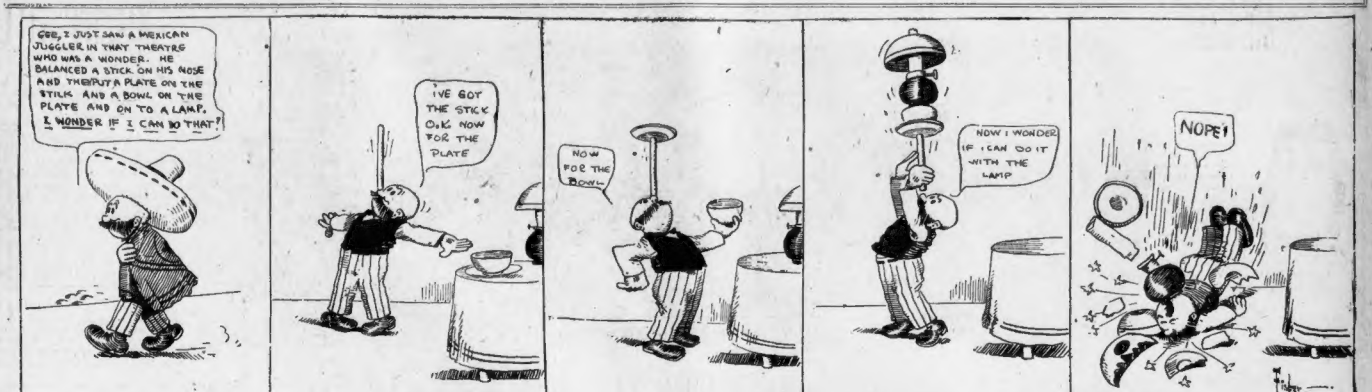
Well, You Can't Blame a Guy for Trying — By "Bud" Fisher



OH, I JUST SAW A MEXICAN JUGGLER IN THAT THEATRE WHO WAS A WONDER. HE BALANCED A STICK ON HIS NOSE AND THEN PUT A PLATE ON THE STICK AND A BOWL ON THE PLATE AND ON TO A LAMP. I WONDER IF I CAN DO THAT?
I'VE GOT THE STICK OK. NOW FOR THE PLATE
NOW FOR THE BOWL
NOW I WONDER IF I CAN DO IT WITH THE LAMP
NOPE!

TRIS SPEAKER HOLDS RECORD FOR DOUBLES

Walter Johnson, Clyde Milan and Joe Wood were not the only American League players of 1912 who established new records in the younger organization.

Admirers of Tris Speaker who have been delving in the dope have discovered that the Texan, who won the trophy for the most valuable player in the American League in 1912, set a new mark for batters to shoot at by hammering out fifty-three doubles.

Napoleon Lajoie previously held the high water mark in two-baggers with fifty-one, which number he outdrived in 1910.

Speaker gained ten of his doubles last season in the games with the Athletics. Off the St. Louis twirlers he secured nine two-baggers; off Chicago's, eight; off Cleveland's, eight; off New York's, eight; off Washington's, six, and off Detroit's, 4. Thrice during the campaign did Tris make two doubles in one contest, the pitchers who suffered being Brown and Bender, Walsh and Ford.

A complete list of the doubles made by Speaker last season follows:

Against Philadelphia—Ten.

April 27, off Brown, one; May 27, off Brown and Bender, one each; July 2, off Coombs, one; July 4, off Plank, one; July 5, off Houck, one; July 6, off Penock, one; August 30, off Bender, one; October 4, off Houck, one; October 5, off Bender, one.

Against St. Louis—Nine.

May 13, off Lake, one; May 14, off Baumgardner, one; May 15, off Feity, one; June 8, off Mitchell, one; June 10, off C. Brown, one; June 11, off Hamilton, one; July 16, off Powell, one; August 1, off Allison, one; September 15, off Baumgardner, one.

Against Chicago—Eight.

June 17, off Walsh, two; July 20, off Walsh, one; July 28, off Cicotte, one; July 29, off Benz, one; August 25, off Walsh, one; August 28, off Benz, one; August 26, off Taylor, one.

Against Cleveland—Eight.

May 22, off Kahler, one; June 2, off George, one; June 3, off Blanding, one; July 22, off Baskette, one; August 4, off Steen, one; August 6, off Gregg, one; August 7, off Mitchell, one; September 17, off Gregg, one.

Against New York—Eight.

April 26, off Caldwell, one; June 22, off Warhop, one; June 23, off McConnell, one; June 28, off Ford, two; July 1, off McConnell, one; September 27, off Schultz, one.

Against Washington—Six.

May 4, off Akers, one; June 26, off Groom, one; June 27, off Hughes, 1; September 6, off Cashion, one; September 8, off Johnson, one; September 28, off Cashion, one.

Against Detroit—Four.

June 7, off Dubuc, one; July 12, off Willett, one; August 9, off Mullin, one; August 19, off Willett, one.

WIN FOR WIGHTMAN.

George Wightman advanced another round in the senior court tennis handicap tournament at the Boston Athletic Association yesterday by defeating E. M. Spears, 6—3, 6—0. Spears gave Wightman 15 and a bisque.

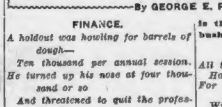
A holdout was howling for barrels of dough—
Ten thousand per annual session.
He turned up his nose at four thousand or so
And threatened to quit the profession.



"Four thousand," he answered with scorn on his mush,
"Is pretty good pay for a porter.
They can't hire me for no minor league cush—
Say, bo, will you lend me a quarter?"

THE RECRUIT'S ALPHABET.

A stands for Ache that he feels in his arm,
Making him wish he was back on the farm.

B stands for Busher, a much hated name
He hears when exhibiting Bone in a game.

C stands for Clout that he slams out today;
Also for Can, which they hand him in May.

D stands for Double he clouts in his pies;
Also for Dub which he turns out to be.

E stands for Rate, where recruits always shine;
They all hit .300 whenever they dine.

F stands for Fool who would write stuff like this;
If I keep on they will can me, I wis.

GALLANT WANTS TO BOX WINNER OF TITLE BOUT

By JACK CONWAY.

THE Matty Baldwin-Steve Kennedy twelve-round bout at Manchester, N. H., on next Tuesday night will settle the question of who's who among the New England lightweights. Baldwin is the champion, but there are many "fans" who believe that Kennedy is his master.

The winner of this encounter will not be able to rest on his laurels as there will be a number of young men anxious to meet him. Alec McLean, manager of Gilbert Gallant of Chelsea, is desirous of arranging a bout between the winner of the Baldwin-Kennedy encounter and his protege.

Gallant has already fought Kennedy once. These two boys clashed at Lawrence several months ago and Kennedy won after ten fine rounds of boxing. Gallant was the aggressor, but Kennedy proved too fast and shifty for him. McLean's battler is confident that he would be able to reverse the decision if given another bout with the lad from Lawrence.

Baldwin and Gallant were formerly "stable mates," but separated when McLean and Baldwin had a disagreement.

Baldwin is picked to defeat Kennedy Thursday, but he will have to travel at his fastest pace in order to do so, as Stevey is one swell little boxer.

JOE RIVERS has started hard training for his bout with Leach Cross, which is scheduled for New York. This should be a grand battle. The Mexican wounded is the logical opponent for Champion Willie Ritchie, while Cross proved that he is one of the most dangerous lightweights in the world when he recently knocked out Joe Mendot at New Orleans.

Rivers is a regular fighter and is also a classy boxer. He is the only boxer who ever "stopped" "Knockout" Brown, the rugged New York lightweight. The dark-skinned Mexican will engage in three contests in New York and will then probably return to the coast where he may be matched to clash with Ritchie.

CROSS and Rivers fought when the California fighter was last in the East and Rivers won. Leach is far from being a clever boxer. He is as shrewd as they make them, however, and when it comes to punching power the dentist is in a class by himself.

If Cross lands one of his mighty rights on Rivers' jaw, the latter may do a Bombardier Wells. There isn't a boxer in the ring who will not take the count if he is hit hard enough and on the right spot.

SAM LANGFORD must feel rather gloomy when he reads of Luther McCarty and several other of our "champions" turning down $5,000 and $10,000 offers for their services. McCarty, Smith and Willard are all slashing fighters but who would back any member of this trio against the Cambridge terror? Sam would probably be able to dispose of these men in short order. Langford is a typical fighter and far be it from me to say what Mr. McCarty & Co. would do if Sam should land one of his stinging lefts to the stomach followed by a smashing right hand punch to the point of the jaw.

JOHNNY KILBANE says that he will try for a knockout when he meets Johnny Dundee on the Coast next month. Kilbane has come in for a great deal of criticism since he won the featherweight championship by vanquishing Abe Attell a year ago last Washington's Birthday. Regardless of this he is a wonderful boxer, a real champion and capable of defeating any man of his weight in the ring. He has not started the world by his work since he beat Abe Attell, but yet I do not recall where any boxer outclassed the Cleveland youth.

Buzzy Beats Felton in Deciding Match for Billiard Title

Louis Buzzy won the three-cushion billiard game from George Felton at the Waite Bear last night by the score of 50 to 32 thereby winning first prize, and becoming the new champion of New England. The game was a very even one during the first part of the play, both men executing a number of intricate shots.

Buzzy took the lead during the middle of the game, after which there did not seem to be any doubt of the final result.

Buzzy made the high run of the game, 5 points, Felton's best run being 4.

Annudson and Carroll, being tied for third prize, will play tonight, which will be the last game of the tournament.

PITTSBURGH BOXER DEAD FROM BLOW

PITTSBURGH, March 22.—Tommy Levalle, a local lightweight boxer, is dead at Mercy Hospital here as the result of a blow he received in a boxing bout before the Tariff Club Thursday night. His skull was fractured. George Anderson, who was Levalle's opponent in the boxing bout, and A. C. Evans, who is alleged to have arranged the match, have been arrested and are held to await the action of the coroner.

M'LEOD SELECTED TO LEAD TECH SEVEN

N. D. McLeod, 1914, has been elected captain of next year's hockey team at Technology. Huributt, who was the logical choice, was unable to take the position because of the four-year intercollegiate ruling. Rogers has been elected manager and Fletcher was the choice for assistant manager. These three, with Eichorn, will be the only men left for the team next year from this year's organization.

VOLKMANN MEET.

The Volkmann School athletes will hold an indoor track meet in the school "gym" on Newbury street today.

AMATEUR GAMES

The Clover Club of Medford has just organized a baseball nine and would like to meet teams averaging twelve-thirteen years of age. The team is anxious to play games at home. Manager John F. Ghilis, No. 9 Emerson street, Medford.

The Tiger A. C. of Charlestown, a twelve-thirteen-year-old team, is desirous of meeting the fastest nines of that age in the vicinity of Boston. Home game wanted for April 19. Manager E. Whelan, No. 32 Auburn street, Charlestown.

A schedule is being arranged by the Plymouth Red Sox baseball team, and as it has not yet been completed the manager is anxious to communicate with the fastest amateur teams in the State. The team won twenty-two out of twenty-six games last season. Manager James Dauley, Alden street, Plymouth.

Amateur baseball will be represented in Lynn this season by the Pilgrims, a classy aggregation of ball tossers late of the leading universities and colleges in the East and South, who are now completing the course of study at the General Electric Company's works.

Although none of the players' names have been announced as yet, it is believed that the team will, without doubt, be a formidable one for the State semi-professional championship.

The team will be under the management of G. O. Mason. He has already arranged a strong schedule of games, but a few more teams are needed to complete it and the club would be pleased to consider challenges from any fast team within the radius of a hundred miles of Lynn. The manager can be located at The Belcastle, West Lynn.

The Dorchester Club team is arranging its schedule for the coming season, and would be pleased to hear from the fastest amateur clubs in Boston and vicinity. It is the intention to play a majority of the games at Franklin Field, directly opposite the clubhouse, and the lockers and shower baths of the club will be at the disposal of the visiting players. The diamonds on the field are in fine condition.

Inter open dates communicate with Charles F. Graham, manager, Dorchester Club, Talbot avenue, Dorchester.

The Bronson A. C. is out with a challenge to any fourteen-fifteen-year-old team in and around Boston, Saturday or holidays preferred. Address George Trump, No. 20 Pearson road, Somerville, or telephone Somerville 4053-M.

The Charlestown Red Sox will be represented on the diamond this year by a fast nine. They will be strengthened by Sheehan of the St. Francis. Would like to hear from strong seventeen-year-old teams. E. J. Kennedy, No. 28 School street, city.

The Arcadians of Somerville, formerly the Ian St. Joseph team, of that city, has organized for the season of 1913, and would appreciate hearing from any semi-professional teams either at or away from home. Reasonable guarantees given and expected. The team has been strengthened considerably by several strong acquisitions in the persons of "Dave" Lane from the Greater Boston League and Carrigan from the Canadian League who, with McGrath, Dunleavy and Maher of last year, make the nucleus for a very formidable aggregation. Teams desiring to arrange games address P. T. McGrath, manager, No. 14 Kilby street, Somerville.

The Midget A. C. of Lynn would like to complete its schedule, and would be glad to hear from any fifteen or sixteen-year-old teams in the State. This is the third consecutive year as an organized baseball team. Managers should communicate with Manager John F. Wheeler, No. 20 Hutchinson court, Lynn.

The Dorchester Cubs will be represented on the diamond this year by selected high school players of this district, and would like to play with any amateur teams. Several dates are still open. Manager Albert Porter, No. 44 Longfellow street, Dorchester.

The Rangers of Malden would like to play any seventeen-eighteen-year-old team in or around Boston on April 19, a. m., and April 26, p. m., at or away from home. Manager Harry Cullen, No. 843 Main street, Malden.

The Redman A. C. of Quincy play their games on Saturday and holidays and have as yet filled no dates. The average age is eighteen-nineteen years. Roslindale A. C. preferred. Manager Henry Moorhouse, No. 835 Centre street, Quincy.

The Pickering N. A. of Salem have organized for the coming season, and would be pleased to hear from any fast semi-pro team. Game wanted for April 19 at home. Albert Pierce, manager, No. 125 North street, Salem.

The Camp Gibson team, last year in the Mystic Valley Church League, will play independently this year, and wishes games with amateur teams around Greater Boston. The team this year will have Patterson, formerly of Hudson Higa, and last Summer with the Somerville Independents, for a pitcher, and there is a chance that Quimby, Somerville High's first baseman last year, will catch. Address Frank C. Davis, manager, No. 241 Highland avenue, Somerville.

Washington Refuses to Turn Recruits Over to Pilgrims

ATLANTA, Ga., March 22.—Manager Scallings' effort to build up an outfield for the Pilgrims received a discouraging setback when Manager Griffith of Washington failed to part with his recruits, Outfielders Allen and Sheer. When reports emanated from the Washington camp in Charlottsville, Va., that Griffith thought these youngsters could stand another year's seasoning in the minors, Stallings, who had had a scout look over them, refused to waive. Now it develops that Griffith has seen enough promise in the players to justify him in retaining them.

Just what effect this announcement will have on the Pilgrims in their present weakened outfield condition is hard to figure. Stallings' crew is due to start a hard road series next week and the Jackson-Kirke-Titus outfield combination is hardly of the class to compete in the hard schedule. McKechnie is picked to displace Jackson, though.

GOULD AND HUHN BEATEN IN MATCH

PHILADELPHIA, March 22.—In the best contested four-handed court tennis match of the season, Alfred Wilson Potter and F. C. Tompkins, instructor to the Racquet club, defeated Jay Gould and W. H. T. Huhn of the local Club here by three sets to two. The losers gave the winners fifteen in each game, and the handicap proved just a little bit beyond their powers on the day's play.

JAY GOULD ENTERS BIG TOURNAMENT

J. Gould, the amateur champion court tennis player, is to give those desirous of winning the championship a chance in the national championship tournament which takes place at the Tennis and Racquet Club the week of April 7. Gould has entered and against him will be pitted Joshua Crane, the former champion. There is a probability that Charles Beadle of New York, another former title-holder, will compete against the champion.

KEATING HAS A BRIGHT FUTURE IN THE MAJORS

It was not until this week that the New England recruit began to show his real form. He was slow in rounding to form, having had a lot of weight to take off, but now that he is in trim, Keating is cutting loose with a line of pitching that would do credit to a veteran star.

The youngster made his first real effort less than a week ago against the Jersey City team and since then has displayed a lot of fancy talent. Chance is greatly pleased with his work and thinks he will be an invaluable addition to the veterans squad. There is still a lot Keating has to learn, for he spent less than two years in the minors, having made his debut with the Hamilton club of the Canadian League in 1911, before he was eighteen.

Last year, when he made a wonderful record in the New England League, pitching the Lawrence club to victory, was really his first work of any account in the professional game.

He is a big fellow, over six feet in height and well developed, scaling about 190 pounds, having an ideal build for a pitcher, one of the tireless sort of which Ed Walsh is a notable example. Ray can breeze through a game and finish strong-er than he started.

Although he has never been called on to perform any feats of the sort that made Joe McGinnity famous, there is little doubt he could work through a doubleheader without putting any serious strain on his arm or energy.

The spitter is Keating's chief stock-in-trade, and he has remarkably good control of the wet ball, which is the most difficult to handle. He can also get a lot of steam behind the pill when he tries, and he is wise enough to reserve his strength for the occasions when most needed.

The House on the Marsh

A CELEBRATED NOVEL BY FLORENCE WARDEN

SYNOPSIS

Miss Christie secures a position as governess in the Rayner home, which is situated on a distant English moor. A cloud of mystery which clouds the life of Mr. and Mrs. Rayner, and the children, who show an intense dislike for their father, puzzles the new governess. Laurence Reade, a friend of the family, warns Miss Christie by making veiled insinuations against Mr. Rayner, who shows a fondness for the governess that arouses the jealousy of Reade. Sarah, a servant, who seems to hold the key to Rayner's secrets, becomes jealous of Miss Christie and mocks the girl on her journey. Through her pupil Miss Christie hears that, following loud words, Mr. Rayner ethereized his wife, forcing her into unconsciousness. Miss Christie meets Reade, who attacks Rayner for not being kind to his wife. Miss Christie defends his action, saying his life is one of solicitation for his wife and the comfort of the other members of the household, citing as an example that fearing her room was damp he had had her transferred to a turret room. In a burst of anger Reade declares Rayner knows the house is damp, and although he refuses to sleep there himself, compels his wife and children to, which causes Miss Christie to remember she has frequently seen Rayner leaving the house after the others have retired.

PART I.

DOESN'T Mr. Rayner like her?" "Like her? I don't think anyone could like Sarah, except, of course, her young man. That doesn't count, but Mr. Rayner thinks a great deal of her."

"So a young man's liking doesn't count?"

"Of course Tom Parker's pleading is in her favor," said I, preferring that the talk should remain personal.

"Surely it is a compliment to a woman that a young man should be prejudiced in her favor?" said he, preferring that the talk should become abstract.

"He must have finished by this time," I cried; and a vigorous thump on the counter did at last bring Mr. Bowles, who declared that it was the first sound he had heard.

"I was sorry to find that he had several of the items I wanted are everything he sold was the worst possible quality; and, while he was doing them up, Mr. Reade found an opportunity to whisper:

"You got my flowers?"

"Yes, thank you, it was very kind of you to send them."

"Bring them," he corrected. "What did you do with them?"

I remembered the fair-haired girl and my resolve to be discreet.

"I put them in water and when they were dead I threw them away."

Threw Flowers Away

"Threw them away?"

"Yes, of course; one doesn't keep dead flowers," said I calmly, but it hurt me to say it, for those words seemed to hurt him. It is very hard to be discreet.

He said no more, but took his parcel and left the shop, saluting me very coldly. I had taken up my parcel, and was going out too, when Haldee's soft voice broke in.

"You've got Mr. Reade's marines, and he has gone off with mamma's wool and curtain hooks, Miss Christie!"

I had not noticed this.

"How stupid of me," I exclaimed.

He had marched off so fast that I had to run down to the lane after him before he heard me call "Mr. Reade!"

We laughed a little at the embarrassment he would have felt if he had produced a ball of wool and curtain hooks as the result of his morning shopping, and if I had gravely presented Mrs. Rayner with the bag of marbles. And then, remorseful and blushing, I said hurriedly—

"I did keep one of the roses, Mr. Reade —the one with the note on it"—and then I ran back to Haidee, without looking up. Whether he was engaged or not, I could not be ungracious about those lovely flowers.

Faith Remains Firm

Mr. Reade's cruel and prejudiced accusations against Mr. Rayner had not in the least shaken my faith in the kindness and goodness of the master of the Alders, but I felt anxious to prove to myself that the charges he brought against him were groundless. Mr. Reade's suggestion that he let his family sleep in the damp house while he passed his nights elsewhere, for instance, was absurd in the extreme.

Where else could a man go without any one knowing anything about it? I often heard his voice and step about the house till quite late, he was always one of the first in the dining room to our eight o'clock breakfast, and even on the wettest mornings he never looked as if he had been out in the rain.

It often seemed to me that, when I have been puzzling fruitlessly for a long time over any matter, I find out what I want to know by accident when I am not looking for it.

Thus, only the day after my talk with Mr. Reade in the shop I was nursing Haidee, who did not feel inclined to play after lesson time, when she said:

Asks Strange Question

"Do you ever have horrid dreams, Miss Christie, that frighten you, and then come true?"

She put her little head up to my cheek, and, drawing down my face to hers, breathed in my ear, in the very faintest, softest whisper I have ever heard:

"You know that day when we took you up to your new room in the turret?"

"Yes, dear," said I.

"Hush! Whisper!" cooed she. "Well, that night Jane put me to bed, just as she always does, in my little room, and then I went to sleep just as I always do. And then I dreamt that I heard mamma screaming and crying, and papa speaking—it's different from the way he generally does. It made me frightened in my dreams.

"I thought it was all real, and I tried to get out of bed, but I was too much asleep; and then I didn't dream any more, only when I woke up I remembered it.

"I didn't tell anybody; but the next night I wondered if I should have the dream again, and I didn't want it to go away; and, when I said it was because I had a dream, she said dreams were stuff and nonsense, and she wanted to go and dream of having supper. And then she went away, and I went to sleep.

"And when I woke up, because mamma and papa were so cross, I thought at first it was my dream again; but I knocked my head against the rail of my bed. Then I knew I must be awake. So I got out of bed, and I went quite softly to the door and looked through the keyhole for there was a light in the room.

"When she has a light, I can see in quite plainly through the keyhole, and I can see the bed and her lying in it. But she wasn't alone like she generally is—I could see some head lolling by the candle, and he was talking to her in such a low voice; and she was crying and talking quite wildly and piteously, so that she frightened me. When she talks like that I feel afraid—it doesn't seem as if she were mamma.

"And then I saw papa put something on her face and mamma said: 'Don't—oh, don't!' not that! and then she only moaned, and then she was quite still, and I heard him go out of the room. And presently I called 'Mamma, mamma!' but she didn't answer; and I was so frightened, I thought she was dead. But then I heard a sigh like she always does in her sleep, and I got into bed again."

"Were you afraid to go in, darling?"

"I couldn't go in because the door was locked. It always is, you know. I never go into mamma's room. I did only once, and she said—and the child's soft whisper grew softer still, and she held her tiny lips close to my ear—she said I was never to say anything about it—and I promised, so I mustn't, even to you, Miss Christie, dear. You don't mind, do you, because I promised?"

"No, darling, I don't. Of course you must not tell if you promised," said I.

But I would have given the world to know what the child had seen in that mysterious room.

What if Mr. Rayner, bright, cheerful and good-tempered, as he always seemed, were really suffering under the burden of a wife whose sullen silence might at any moment break into wild insanity—if he had to wrestle in secret, as from the child's story seemed to have been the case quite recently, on two successive nights, with moods of wild wailing and weeping which he had at first tried to deal with by gentle remonstrance (Haidee said that on the second night, when she was fully awake, his voice was very low and soft), and at last had to use bullying authority?

Explains Sarah's Position

And then a suggestion occurred to me which would at least explain Sarah's important position in the household. Was she, perhaps, in truth, a responsible guardian of Mrs. Rayner, such as, if the latter's reason was really feeble, it would be necessary for her to have in her husband's absence? I already knew that the relations between mistress and servant were not very amiable.

Though she treated her with all outward signs of respect, it was not difficult to see that Sarah despised her mistress, while I had sometimes surprised in the wife grey eyes of the other a side-glance of dislike and fear which made me wonder how she could tolerate in her household a woman for whom she had no strong an aversion.

That Mr. Rayner was anxious to keep the scandal of having a mad wife, a secret from the world, was clear from the fact that not even Mr. Lawrence Reade, it seemed to take a particular interest in the affairs of the household at the Alders, had ever shown the least suspicion that this was the case.

So the secluded life Mrs. Rayner led came to be ascribed to the caprice—if the village gossips did not use a harsher word —of her husband, while that unfortunate man was really not her tyrant, but her victim.

The only other possible explanation of what Haidee had seen was that Mr. Rayner, kind and sweet-tempered to every one as he always was, and outwardly gentle and thoughtful to a touching degree toward his cold wife, was really the most consummate hypocrite, and was putting upon his wife, under the semblance of devoted affection, a fearful restraint which was a positive torture as it was easy for her to break through. This idea was absurd.

After tea, one evening Mr. Rayner got out his violin, and I sat down to the piano and we played first some German popular songs and then a long succession of the airs, now lively, now pathetic, now dramatic and passionate, out of old operas that have delighted Europe for years, such as "The Huguenots," "La Traviata," "Rigoletto" and Balfe's graceful "Rose of Castille," and "The Bohemian Girl."

Mr. Rayner played with the fire of an enthusiast, and again I caught the spirit of his playing, and accompanied him, he said, while his face shone with the ecstasy of a musician, as no one had ever accompanied him before.

IN SUNDAY'S AMERICAN

GOT HIS OWN BACK

A homeopathic convention a doctor told a story about a brother specialist who is an authority on the stomach.

"Well, he said, 'I was camping in the Wild and Woolly West, where they are all great jokers. At a country club a jovial-looking stranger accosted Blank and said:

"'Dr. Blank, I believe?

"'Yes, sir; thank you.'

"'The great Dr. Blank?

"'Well, er—I—well, yes. I have been called—er—by that name.'

"'The Dr. Blank who treats stomachs?

"'Precisely, sir.'

"'Then, Dr. Blank, as it's luncheon hour and our table d'hote is excellent, I wish you'd treat mine!' said the joker.

"Dr. Blank's veins ran rich with generous sporting blood and he treated the stranger—an amiable Western millionaire, as it turned out—to lunch. But he got his revenge. Later on in the afternoon he approached a group of men, with a sad air of small bills in his hand.

"'Has anybody here,' he asked, 'got ten dollars?'

"The Western joker promptly produced a ten-dollar note and handed it to Blank. Blank thanked him, pocketed the bill, pocket, and turned away.

"'Look here,' said the Westerner. 'What did you want that bill for?'

"'What did I want it for?' asked Blank, blandly. 'Why, for treating your stomach, of course. It's my usual fee.'"

THE MORNING'S SURPRISE

Blueton Easy, after living sixty years on a farm, finds his quarters so shiptboard somewhat cramped. He obviates the lack of space, however, by stowing his trousers and shoes into a round cupboard in the side of the vessel or going to bed.

Seven a. m. Startling disclosures!

"Steward, last night I put my clothes in that cubby-hole, as they ain't there now."

"That ain't a clothes press; that's a porthole, sir."

CASSIDY THROWS NEW LIGHT ON PURE FOOD FOES

Buckley's paper, "The Grocery World," has been hauled to the committee in an effort to discredit me. It contained an article attacking me bitterly.

My personal feeling is that when a pure food measure is under discussion the question is: "Will this law be a good one?" and not "Is the man whose name appears over this bill all he should be?"

But Alton E. Briggs, executive secretary of the Fruit and Produce Exchange, prefers personalities to any arguments on the merits of the bill. Therefore, personalities let it be.

Now for Elton J. Buckley, editor of the "Grocery World," a Philadelphia trade sheet.

Buckley's first grudge against me dates from the glucose case in Philadelphia. I found the glucose made by the Corn Products Refining Company contained poisonous sulphites, contrary to the Pennsylvania law. Buckley represented the Corn Products people, but was forced, by the position in which he found himself, to refrain from fighting the case at all. He paid $30,000 in fines for his silence, and the company spent $600,000 in getting their sulphite loaded glucose out of the State.

In fairness to the Corn Products Company it should be stated that the glucose sold in the United States today, of their manufacture, does not contain sulphites. They have changed their process and purified their product.

To continue with Buckley. He undertook to run a food fair—acting as press agent, or in some similar capacity. He asked me to speak at the fair. I agreed. Then he advertised that "all products exhibited in the fair will be first passed up by Harry P. Cassidy." I called him on the phone, ordered him to quit this misuse of my name, and then denounced his fake food fair so that it was a complete failure.

So Buckley didn't like me.

Then for a number of years he was busily engaged in defending food dopers whom I had arrested for selling food filled with sulphites or benzoate. At last his chance came, when, at Pennsylvania's orders, Commissioner Foust—who had deserted from the navy and feared Penrose would cause his arrest, according to the Philadelphia North American—hired Buckley to prepare charges against me.

Buckley did a good job. He got affidavits from forty men or firms I had prosecuted, testifying that I had prosecuted them with great harshness for selling impure food. Buckley also charged that I had received money from a go-between in his pay, who had made a deal with a rotten egg man. At the hearing before Governor Tener, Buckley was forced to admit that he had in his pocket an affidavit from his go-between, declaring he had never been me, didn't know me and had had no dealings with me.

Thus Buckley was convicted of deliberate misstatements or misrepresentations.

Judging by Mr. Briggs' general tactics, I doubt if he ever presented the actual facts as to my dismissal from the department, to the people of Boston. Here is what Governor Tener had to say, in his letter to me after a public hearing:

"In justice to you it is proper to say that no direct evidence of corrupt conduct was presented at the hearing. But this much is clear—that all confidence between you and your superior officer have been destroyed; and therefore, in my opinion, your removal was for the good of the service."

Thus in two sentences, the Governor exonerated me and paid me a high compliment by adding that all confidence between myself and Commissioner Foust, the food dopers' agent, had been destroyed. I'm glad I forfeited the confidence of Foust and the dopers.

To return to Buckley. Here is a statement of his editorial policy from his own organ, which may shed light on his reasons for attacking me in the periodical handed the committee:

"Manufacturers have told us they didn't believe in trade papers because they looked upon them as publishers as a lot of blackmailers who toadied to those who advertised, and roasted those who didn't. (What do you think of that, you Boston business men Is it true?)

"No Buckley didn't like me.

Then for a number of years he was busily engaged in defending food dopers whom I had arrested for selling food filled with sulphites or benzoate. At last his chance came, when, at Pennsylvania's orders, Commissioner Foust—who had deserted from the navy and feared Penrose would cause his arrest, according to the Philadelphia North American—hired Buckley to prepare charges against me.

Love Alone Is Not Enough

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"But love can hope where reason would despair."
—LORD LYTTLETON.

"WE are a couple with matrimonial intentions," writes S., H. K. "Do you think we can live on $16 a week?"

"Is $22 a week enough to get married on?" asks F. E. S.

Love has a way of forgetting rent day and the price of meat that makes love charming. One sails through a love affair as oblivious of the landing and reality that await as if one were sailing down a frosted stream in a dream. The two in the boat, the man and the woman, are dreaming. Occasionally one awakes long enough to dreamily ask the question asked by F. H. E. and J. H. S., but the dreamer is almost again in his dream boat without pausing for the reply.

Or if he wants to hear it he smiles incredulously at the argument that one cannot live on bread and cheese and kisses, the price of the first two having gone up and the taste for the latter diminishing in proportion as the necessity grows for making it the sole means of subsistence.

"But love can hope where reason would despair," and it is doubtful if ever any sedious friend who wished to prevent the necessity of calling out a wrecking crew by exhibiting a list of every day's needs and prices was rewarded for his pains. Those he tried to save are married in spite of the army of figures, and wrecking crews and relief expeditions follow each other in close succession ever after.

Would it be possible for a man and his wife to live on $16 a week? Put them in some little country town where he pays $10 a month for rent, and eke out his income with the aid of a little garden patch, and not only is it possible, but if they are made of the right sort they will soon save enough to own that little home, and know rent day no more.

But no American-born girl and boy of today are made of the right sort. This is not a libel, unless facts be such. What American girl marrying these days receives a wash tub in her wedding gifts? How many American girls really know which comes first: The starching or the blueing? Do you, S. H. E., or J. H. S., know if the girl of your dreams knows how to make Monday's soup of the scraps of Sunday's roast? Can that little hand you like to hold pattern the simplest garment?

Suppose she is a paragon of every economical virtue, are you a good match for her? Will you give up your cigars without a murmur? Will you wear old clothes indefinitely and find them glorified by the light of love? Will you continue to love her when the burdens, the privations, the sacrifices, the monotony of a bare existence have made her old and ugly before her time?

That little dream boat you are in will soon bump against the landing, and that landing we will call Reality.

Every ailment that would weaken Love awaits you there. And once attacked, love soon sickens and, alas, Love soon dies.

With the flight of Love flies the gods. The faded garments you will thereafter wear are not more faded than your life.

Don't expose anything so precious as love to such unfavorable treatment. If you cannot afford it on love and of course you can't, go into preliminary training for meeting just such hardships as marriage will bring you.

In that way you will answer your own question, and there are questions that no one can answer for you.

CATARRH TRUTH

Told in a Simple Way

No Apparatus, Inhalers, Salves, Lotions, Harmful Drugs, Smoke or Electricity

HEALS 24 HOURS

It is a new way. It is something absolutely different. No liquid, powder or sickly smelling salves or creams. No atomizers or any apparatus of any kind. Nothing to smoke or inhale. No steaming, no rubbing or injections. No electricity or vibration or massage. No powder, no plasters; no sleeping in the house. Nothing of that kind at all. Something new and different, something delightful and healthful, something instantly successful. You do not have to wait, and linger and pay out a lot of money. You can stop it over night—and I will gladly tell you how—FREE. I am not a doctor and this is not a so-called doctor's prescription—but I am cured and my friends are cured, and you can be cured, too. Your suffering will stop at once like magic.

I Am Free—You Can Be Free

My catarrh was filthy and loathsome. It made me ill. It dulled my mind. It undermined my health. And the more I tried to stop the wasting, coughing, spitting made me so conscious of my case that I could not break my habits made even my closest friends shun my society. My delight in life was dulled and my faculties impaired. I knew that some time I would bring me to an untimely grave, because every moment of the day and night I was constantly sapping my vitality.

But I found a way, and am ready to tell you about it FREE. Write me promptly.

RISK JUST ONE CENT

Send no money. Just your name and address on a postal card. Say "Dear Sam Katz, Please tell me how you cured your catarrh, and how I can cure mine. That's all you need to write. Address me personally, for I want you to write immediately. Do it NOW. Put it on a postal card today. Send postal card or write me a letter today. Don't think of buying this pure until you have asked for this wonderful treatment. That may be the very thing you have been looking for. Address me personally.

Modern Civilization Has Proven Ruinous To Nerves and Body

Nervous Debility Can Make the Smallest Ailments Assume the Proportions of Chronic Diseases and Makes Sleep at Night Be Broken and Restless—A Sure Way to Get Relief from This Condition Is to Use Tona Vita, Which Relieves the Symptom by Aiding the Brain.

A familiar example, which goes to prove that pain is a diseased mental state, is the one of the man with the toothache who goes to see an exciting play. He gets so interested that the toothache is forgotten, and by the time the show is over the toothache is gone.

This is a good illustration of the action of Tona Vita on a patient suffering from mental debility.

A person in this condition is listless and lacks vitality and ambition. The smallest ailments are magnified into terrible diseases. It is impossible to sleep at night as one would wish. The whole outlook on life seems gloomy. In other words, the imagination has become a will-o'-the-wisp of trouble, and in fancy the patient is suffering, in many different ways.

Now, suppose such a person would take a tonic like Tona Vita. The nerves are immediately toned up, they become strong and healthy. The mind then becomes occupied with thoughts other than those of fancied ailments and troubles. All pains are thrown off before they have a chance to get a good hold.

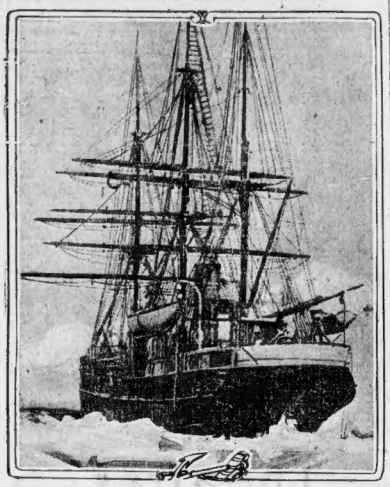
Ship Seeks Icebergs



The Old Whaling Ship Scotia in an Ice Pack

Above is printed a picture of the old Scottish whaling ship Scotia, which has been made an iceberg policeman in the North Atlantic Ocean, in order to prevent another disaster similar to that of the Titanic.

The Scotia will patrol the ocean north of the regular lanes used by the big transatlantic liners, in which the huge icebergs are brought down by the Labrador current at certain seasons of each year. The Scotia will warn big steamships of the whereabouts of all large icebergs which might put them in danger. Also the course of the berg will be carefully watched and recorded.

The United States government will place two scout cruisers in commission doing iceberg patrol duty in the North Atlantic Ocean next month.

The "Baby Party" Now the Fad Among a Certain Section of London Society

This photograph shows a "Baby Party" attended by prominent London society folk. The grown-up guests appeared as little children and enjoyed themselves with feeding bottles and played with childish toys. They also talked "goo-goo" talk and acted as they had seen babies act.

The New "Military Gown"

Two Typical "Military Gowns" Recently Seen at Auteuil

The "military craze" in France has now extended to woman's fashions. Above are shown two of the new costumes recently seen at Auteuil, a fashionable gathering place in France.

Well-known dressmakers predict the growing popularity of those types of dresses for women. As many variations are possible in giving the military effect, the fad may spread to costumes of all grades, the slightest touch of gold braid and brass buttons with blue fabric giving the desired effect.

The Manicure Lady

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"IT must be fine to be one of them newspaper fellers that can all the time get 'posses'," said the Head Barber. "That guy that I just turned out of the chair is a newspaper feller, and he gave me two seats to the theatre. It is pretty soft, when you don't have to klick in with two bucks a seat. That kind of a job bears shaving a mile."

"I used to think that way myself," said the Manicure Lady, "because I had many a pass slipped to me in my day by them Newspaper Row boys. I used to think that if I had been a man I couldn't ask for no better job than to be a star on a big newspaper and make friends with great men and press agents. Brother Wilfred used to have the same ambition, and wrote verses like a beaver chewing at a tree, until he had had so many sonnets and all them freak things he loved to write come back from the editors as fast as Mattie's fast ball. The poor boy is through with that now and is spending his time looking at the want ad. page and touching the old goat for an occasional four bits.

Was on a Paper

"The way I came to change my mind, George, about the soft snap these newspaper boys have was like this: A young feller came in here the other day to have his nails did, and he was sure some smart kid, not one of them fresh bookmakers like Joe Blow, that used to come here and get fresh with me until they stopped razing and he had to use his own scissors. The kid happened to mention that he was on a newspaper, and when I asked him if he knew any press agents he told me that he knew a dozen regular ones.

"He asked me what show I wanted to go to, George. I told him I would like one cheap seat in some show, and the dear boy told me that a big league girl like me deserved better seats than that. He gave me two swell seats to one of the best shows in town."

"That was just what I meant," said the Head Barber, "when I said it was pretty soft to be a newspaper guy and get to all the shows free, and the ball games and the prize fights."

"I ain't through, George," said the Manicure Lady. "When I made the same remark to him about how nice it must be to be down there, where everything is free to journalists, he looked at me kinda sad and said, 'Kid, this isn't any cinch, this newspaper game that you are talking about. I thought it was myself when I come here from a little paper out West, figuring on being another Horace Greeley, but after a few years on a big paper a man has a lot of his illusions shattered, for every free ticket he gets he gives a few hours sleep, hours he spent with those same press agents, hours that much better had been spent in bed."

Gray Hairs Tell

"Two-thirds of the "scoops" he gets mean a long tramp into some muddy country that lasts 'til near press time or a night under the white lights, waiting for the scoop to come by accident. It's a tough game, kid, and it's a whole lot swifter than it is soft.' That's what he told me, George, and I believed him when I seen all them gray hairs on his temples, and him only a young man."

"I suppose he ought to know a lot more about it than I do," said the Head Barber, "and I don't suppose I'd ever care very much for that kind of a job, anyway. This proposition of mine suits me all right, and I guess I'll stick to it."

"If the only other job in the world was being a newspaper man," said the Manicure Lady, "it's a cinch you would be a barber. Let literature alone, George, and keep on shaving."

NURSERY NOTES

DESPITE the chill, wintry blast, the two young men decided upon an afternoon's fishing from a punt moored in the swift running river.

When they returned their noses were shrimmed with cold, but through it all they had a smile—and a creel containing some very small and decidedly immature fish.

The young lady—she was sister to one of the fishermen and the apple of the eye of the other angler—met them as they were wriggling out of their overcoats.

"Ah," she remarked tonsingly, "so you've been fishing again, despite the cold wind! Let me see! Fish go in schools, don't they?"

"But why do you ask?" asked the angler who was not brother to the lady, but who would liked to be something else.

"Er"—nothin," she replied dreamily. "I was only thinking. Er—you've been fishing in the infant's class, haven't you?"

MARVELLOUS

"I have been taking some moving pictures of life on your farm," said the photographer to an agriculturist.

"Did you catch my laborers in motion?" asked the farmer.

"I think so."

"Ah, well, science is a wonderful thing!"

LET RESINOL HEAL YOUR SKIN TROUBLES

Thousands of Sufferers Have Found Skin Health at Last.

Have you suffered for weeks, months or even years with eczema or some other itching, burning, unsightly eruption, that makes daytime a misery and night a torment? Have you tried treatment after treatment in vain, and perhaps given up in despair? Then people whose skins are now clear have gone through this same pitiful experience. At last they tried Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. The soothing, healing, antiseptic Resinol medication stopped the itching instantly and soon all trace of the disease was gone.

Why don't you profit by their experience and let Resinol stop your skin trouble, too? Resinol is a physician's prescription which has been used by other doctors for eighteen years in the treatment of all sorts of skin humors, sores, boils, wounds and piles. You can use Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap freely with the perfect assurance that it contains nothing that could injure the tenderest skin. For liberal free samples write to Dept. 13-S, Resinol, Baltimore, Md. Resinol is sold by every druggist in the United States.

And tired feelings I heartily recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I have used in my family for years and think a very fine medicine. I had salt rheum badly on my face, and humors that seemed to come from or be developed by vaccination. I knew my blood must be in very poor condition. Hood's Sarsaparilla was recommended and I took a few bottles. The humor entirely disappeared, and I have had no trouble from it since. Divorced By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Here is a strong poem from the pen of the famous poetess, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, detailing the path leading up to one divorce. It has been printed in the April COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE, and is reprinted here by permission of the editor.

Copyright, 1913, by the Star Co.

THINKING of one thing all day long, at night
I fall asleep, brain weary and heart sore;
But only for a little while. At three,
Sometimes at two o'clock, I wake and lie,
Staring out into darkness; while my thoughts
Begin the weary treadmill-toil again,
From that white marriage morning of our youth
Down to this dreadful hour.

I see your face
Lit with the lovelight of the honeymoon;
I hear your voice, that lingered on my name
As if it loved each letter; and I feel
The clinging of your arms about my form,
Your kisses on my cheek—and long to break
The anguish of such memories with tears,
But cannot weep; the fountain has run dry.

We were so young, so happy, and so full
Of keen sweet joy of life. I had no wish
Outside your pleasure; and you loved me so
That when I sometimes felt a woman's need
For more serene expression of man's love
(The need of rest in calm affection's bay
And not sail ever on the stormy main),
Yet would I rouse myself to your desire;
Meet ardent kiss with kisses just as warm;
So nothing I could give should be denied.

And then our children came. Deep in my soul,
From the first hour of conscious motherhood,
I knew I should conserve myself for this
Most holy office; knew God meant it so.
Yet even then, I held your wishes first;
And by my double duties lost the bloom
And freshness of my beauty; and beheld
A look of disapproval in your eyes.
But with the coming of our precious child,
The lover's smile, tinged with the father's pride,
Returned again; and helped to make me strong;
And life was very sweet for both of us.

Another, and another birth, and twice
The little white hearse paused beside our door
And took away some portion of my youth
With my sweet babies. At the first you seemed
To suffer with me, standing very near;
But when I wept too long, you turned away.
And I was hurt, not realizing then
My grief was selfish. I could see the change
Which motherhood and sorrow made in me;
And when I saw the change that came to you,
Saw how your eyes looked past me when you talked,
And when I missed the love tone from your voice,
I did that foolish thing weak women do,
Complained and cried, accused you of neglect,
And made myself obnoxious in your sight.
And often, after you had left my side,
Alone I stood before my mirror, mad
With anger at my pallid cheeks, my dull
Unlighted eyes, my shrunken mother-breasts,
And wept, and wept, and faded more and more.
How could I hope to win back wandering love,
And make new flames in dying embers leap,
By such ungracious means?

And then She came,
Firm bosomed, round of cheek, with such young eyes,
And all the ways of youth. I who had died
A thousand deaths, in waiting the return
Of that old love look to your face once more,
Died yet again and went straight into hell
When I beheld it come at her approach.

My God, my God, how have I borne it all!
Yet since she had the power to make that look—
The power to sweep the ashes from your heart
Of burned-out love of me, and light new fires,
One thing remained for me—to let you go.
I had no wish to keep the empty frame
From which the priceless picture had been wrenched.
Nor do I blame you; it was not your fault;
You gave me all that most men can give—love
Of youth, of beauty, and of passion; and
I gave you full return; my womanhood
Matched well your manhood. Yet had you grown ill,
Or old, and unattractive from some cause,
(Less close than was my service unto you)
I should have clung the tighter to you, dear;
And loved you, loved you, loved you more and more.

I grow so weary thinking of these things;
Day in, day out; and half the awful nights.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

ARE YOU SURE YOU LOVE HIM?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young lady of eighteen years and deeply in love with a young man one year my senior. I have been keeping steady company with him for a year. He has proposed. Do you think I ought to accept? I think I am too young.

ANXIOUS.

YOU accepted his attentions for a year, knowing how they would end. Now you fear you are too young to be engaged. I am sorry you didn't avoid him and prevent this most natural result.

A girl of eighteen, if she is steady, reliable and sensible, is not too young to be engaged. My doubts centre around another question. It is that you don't really love him. If you did you would not remember your age.

LEAVE IT TO THE GIRL.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am keeping company with a young lady to whom I expect to be engaged in a short time. Last Xmas I gave her a diamond ring. She has been wearing it on the right hand finger. Nevertheless, the gossip is that we are engaged.

What I would like to know is if it would be proper to use that one for the engagement ring, or would you suggest asking her which she would prefer; another one or to exchange the one she now has for a larger one which may be had by adding $100 or so.

M. J. Hill.

LET her decide, and I hope her decision will be to consider the ring she now wears as her engagement ring.

It is too valuable a gift to have marked a mere friendship.

FOR YOU TO DECIDE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of seventeen, am considered very good looking, and I am very popular among the young men. I am keeping company with two young men and think a great deal of them. I do not know which one I love the better. A. takes me to the theatres and gives me good times, but B. seems to like to stay in the house and never seems to want to take me out. Now, I think I would like B. much better than A. if he would take me out and give me good times.

FLORENCE.

SO contrary is the heart of a maid that if my reply favored A. your heart would favor B.

I am sure that neither is the one you really love, for this reason: When a girl loves a man she cannot compare him with other men any more than she could compare a star with a pebble. An exaggeration, I admit, but such is a girl's love.

Let time decide for you.

A very small dog created a great stir in the streets of Paris a few days ago. A bijou pet dog was seen in the Champs Elysees with a lady. It was wearing indiarubber boots laced high up the leg, ear protectors, goggles to shield his eyes from cold or mud, and a raglan overcoat lined with thick flannel and provided with a pocket from which projected a tiny handkerchief with a monogram.

One of the paying professions on the Continent is that of a trunk packer. In many of the trunk shops you can hire a man who will pack your trunk artistically, folding expensive gowns and other garments in tissue paper, and stowing away delicate bric-a-brac in the safest way.

A man is living who was held in the arms of Napoleon as a small child, having survived two French Emperors and three Kings, lived through a term of ten Presidents, and witnessed two revolutions, one coup d'etat, and one civil war. M. Pierre Schamel, aged 100, lives in Neuilly, Paris. happy and in good health, on thirty cents a day allowed him by the Poor Law authorities. He has lived on milk since he was sixty.

There seems to be a craze for originality in the designs of watches, also in the mode of wearing them. Watches have ticked merrily in umbrella handles, in cuffs, in the straps of bags, in buttonhooks, and now we find finger and thumb watches. These tiny articles are worn on rings. They are the daintiest fancies imaginable, some having a case covered entirely with pearls, others having a design in tiny chips of diamonds, emeralds and rubies.

ELIOT VIEW OF HINDU RELIGION HIT BY STUDENTS

The controversy aroused by the declaration of President Emeritus Eliot of Harvard that there is no Hell, in the strict Biblical sense, has hardly subsided when the noted educator finds his views on the Hindu religion rigorously assailed by undergraduates of the university from the Far East.

"Dr. Eliot, we fear, has based his remarks upon the religion of India, at least upon the garbled reports of a few superficial observers," is the reply issued by Hindu students at Harvard declares.

Dr. Eliot's latest views were given during an address at Phillips Brooks House on "Racial Religion" last Sunday evening. In reply to them the Hindu students say that one of the illustrations he cited does not say more prove his case than would the Eleusinian rites serve as typical and as indictment of American society.

"The Christian missionaries in the East are not always the best representatives of the West," the students assert. They also hint that a knowledge of certain Eastern doctrines would have barred some of Dr. Eliot's statements.

Dr. Eliot illustrated one point in his address by saying that if a woman was drowning in Canton, China, a missionary would watch her drown rather than help her unless she were a member of a family of one of the onlookers.

The students say, in their reply to Dr. Eliot:

President Eliot's first point against the religion of India, China and Japan is that they have not reached any spiritual conception of the Deity. If it is meant that the man on the street has not such a conception, we can say the same thing of any country But if it meant that even the thoughtful members of Asiatic communities have not had such a conception this would betray absolute ignorance of the Bhakti-doctrine, which has been in existence ever since 150 B. C. at least.

"The Eastern nations have no conception of the brotherhood of man," President Eliot is reported to have spoken. To be sure, we have not any statute proclaiming the rights of man of the human race. But of equality and fraternity and the liberty, equality and fraternity are to be a matter of fact and not mere words, it is an open question whether one can find a people more loving, more mild, and more charitably disposed than, for instance, are the Hindoos.

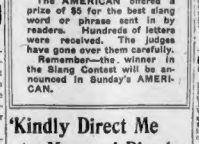
'Kindly Direct Me to Morgue,' Pleads Keeper in Revere



How would you like to be appointed to a 5ob and then have to take a lantern like old Diogenes and go looking for the job?

But a Job's a job. Not what it is, but where it is, is the question.

At least some of the citizens of Revere have shown they know where "St. Joe" and have asked to be shown.

It happened this way.

The Revere selectmen at their meeting Wednesday night created a morgue. The police say there isn't any in the town. But the selectmen didn't care.

They appointed one Arthur V. Sanborn a keeper of the morgue. Now a keeper of anything must have something to keep. Some of the citizens argued there was no such place.

Frank H. Farrell of the board said there was one and it needed Mr. Sanborn as a keeper. Furthermore, he said the morgue was at the police station.

Now, the Revere police resented any insinuation about their being deceased and promptly denied the existence of the place.

However, the vote was passed and Arthur V. Sanborn goes down on the archives of the town of Revere, Mass., as the keeper of the morgue.

Mr. Sanborn says Caesar may have darice refused the crown thrice offered to him, but he's no Caesar.

Q. E. D. or which was to be proved, Revere has a morgue and Revere has a keeper of the morgue.

LOWELL MEN SHOT IN ADIRONDACKS BY R. R. DETECTIVE

UTICA, N. Y., March 22.—Arthur Lauren and Thomas Brophy, both of Lowell, Mass., were shot, the former seriously, by New York Central Railroad Detective Joseph McQuade at Tupper Lake, in the Adirondack if the Indians. They were riding blind baggage on a train.

ALCOHOL INJECTIONS AS NEURALGIA CURE

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 22.—The discovery of a cure for neuralgia was claimed today by Dr. Rudolph Matas, one of the most famous surgeons of the South, while addressing the Society of United Surgery. Dr. Matas explained that experiments which he had conducted have convinced him that an injection of alcohol at the base of the brain stops all neuralgic pains for at least two years.

MYSTERY IN FIRE IN GLOUCESTER PLANT

GLOUCESTER, March 22.—The Gloucester Canning Company's building on Granite street was ruined by fire early today. This is the second time within a decade that a big and disastrous fire has been set in the buildings of this concern. The fire was discovered by Frank H. Gaffney, Jr. The loss is estimated at about $4,500, partly covered by insurance.

ELEVATOR ACCIDENT IS FATAL TO BOY

Thirteen-year-old Hyman Thormer of No. 11 Savoy street, South End, died at the Boston City Hospital as the result of injuries when caught in an elevator in the rear of the building at No. 18 Hanover street, which he was at play with a boy chum yesterday. Hyman's little chum was found holding the injured boy's hand when the crew of Ladder Company 17 arrived to release him. The firemen sawed away the elevator to free him.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND, DAILY AND SUNDAY

The Fight Between the Cold-Blooded Turtle and the Big Serpent--CONSUMPTION

An Interesting Fight. May the Turtle Win. If He Doesn't, Something Else Will Destroy Consumption.

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner.

Readers ask us why we do not defend Dr. Friedmann from his critics in this country, and especially against the doctors.

Dr. Friedmann doesn't need defence.

If he is RIGHT, that fact will appear and criticism will not hurt him.

If he is mistaken, his regret for failure to accomplish results will make him forget all about the criticism of doctors, big or little.

The NEW man is always criticized, and the new IDEA is always criticized.

Doctors who, without waiting to see what would happen, expressed their opinions of Dr. Friedmann and denounced him, are not to be envied.

They belong to the old class of those that DO nothing themselves, and readily criticise others that at least TRY to do something.

When Harvey announced that the blood circulates through the veins and arteries, nine-tenths of the doctors said that he was foolish or crazy. And among the few doctors that accepted his theory—which the youngest child might recognize as true—not one was over forty years of age.

If all the doctors over forty years of age stupidly refused to accept the plain truth, presented by Harvey, we need not be surprised that certain doctors inherit a tendency to reject the thought new to them.

Some of the foolish doctors criticize Dr. Friedmann because he lacks skill in a technical art of surgery. What is surgical skill but a trade?

The most skilful surgeon would be a mere mechanical bungler compared to the mechanic who makes a chronometer.

Any ordinary carpenter is really as skilful as the average good surgeon when it comes to handling tools. Mere skill is nothing.

The great Pasteur, of France, who taught the doctors of the world, and to whom they look up with reverence, COULD NEVER PERFORM EVEN THE SLIGHTEST OPERATION WHILE HE LIVED.

He had not gone through the various phases of the doctor's apprenticeship. And when he made his wonderful experiments that have saved millions of lives already, he was obliged to hire some young second-class doctor to do the work.

Friedmann at least has TRIED to do something. He may exaggerate his powers. He may even prove to be on the wrong track. But at least, HE IS TRYING.

The interesting thing is the fact that our poor humble brother, the turtle, left millions of years ago in the race of evolution, may perhaps supply the remedy for the terrible disease that wipes out the human race.

You know, of course, what the idea is—the turtle form of the consumption bacillus is less destructive, less dangerous to our bodies, than that which is bred within ourselves.

This weak, feeble, rather tired out "germ of consumption" to use the popular expression, is taken from the cold blood of the turtle, modified scientifically, and prepared for injection into the human body, in a manner that Friedmann keeps secret.

The theory is that the body will thus be rendered safe against the attack of the more dangerous tubercle bacilli as developed in the human body, because our blood will be taught to fight the disease.

It is doing for consumption what Jenner did for smallpox. Only sentimentalists and dreary old geese in men's clothing deny that Jenner and his vaccination conquered smallpox, which once was a plague as bad as consumption.

You realize what vaccination means, and how criminally stupid its opponents are, when you remember that in America's largest city, New York, with six millions of inhabitants, not half a dozen died of smallpox in the whole of last year. And before the days of Jenner, smallpox killed its thousands annually in every thickly populated community, and such a city as New York, without vaccination, might consider itself lucky if it got along with no more than twenty thousand deaths from smallpox in a year.

The experiment that Friedmann is making with consumption, and that all good doctors and good citizens hope will be successful, is an experiment that has worked in other ways.

Children no longer die of diphtheria. Any intelligent doctor cures them when the disease is discovered in time. And the antitoxin which destroys diphtheria in the child is bred in the body of the horse, and from the horse the serum is taken which enables the blood within the child to fight the disease. This isn't guesswork, it is absolute FACT, demonstrated hundreds of thousands of times in a year. And only an idiot or some dreamer would deny it.

So, with the dreadful curse of cancer. No actual certain cure has been discovered for that, but wonders have been accomplished.

Here are two cases told you in a few words, unscientifically, but just as they happened in the fine investigation of cancer as carried on in the city of Buffalo.

The first case was that of a boy in his teens. He had on one side of his face a cancer as big as an orange. The surgeons said that it might be removed safely, but it would be necessary to take out the whole side of the face, including the jawbone, leaving the boy deformed, and to this the parents would not consent.

They did consent to scientific experiment, however, in the Buffalo hospital, which leads in modern method of fighting cancer.

This is the method as a layman would explain it.

The cancer is taken from a white rat or a white mouse. It is pulverized, ground up into the finest imaginable particles. With this powdered cancer there is mixed a certain, powerful poisonous element. The

The Snake and Turtle Fight

This is not a picture of an imaginary battle. It is simply a striking presentation of a striking fact.

The great, monstrous serpent, CONSUMPTION, encircles the entire globe upon which we live.

And that monster is now attacked by the calm and cold-blooded turtle, in the hands of science. Consumption kills more victims than war, poisonous serpents and dangerous wild animals combined. It is the greatest cause of death on earth---excepting poverty, which kills nine-tenths of the people before their lives should have ended.

A very interesting fight, this snake and turtle fight. (SEE EDITORIAL.)

What Distinction Should Be Made in the Use of the Terms, "a Woman" and "a Lady"?

In a Land of Equality a Lady Is "a Woman of Gentle and Refined Manners." She Does Not Need to Be Labelled, as She Is Easily Recognizable by Her Qualities—She May Be the Humblest Worker.

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner

WHAT is the distinction, asks a correspondent, between "a woman" and "a lady"? "It seems that every lady is a woman, but not every woman a lady."

Webster tells us that the term "lady" is derived from two words, meaning bread, and helper. His definitions are therefore:

1. "Bread helper."
"A mistress of the house."
2. "A woman of social distinction. In England a woman whose husband is not lower than a Knight in rank, or whose father was not lower than an Earl."
3. "A woman of gentle and refined manners."
4. "A wife or spouse."

In America, the land of freedom and "equality," the word "lady" is much misused.

We all know the true story of the mistress of the house who was met by the inquiry, "Are you the woman as advertised for a washlady?" "Wash lady" and "sales lady" are terms now in general use by the uninstructed.

The impression seems to prevail among the ignorant and ambitious that showy garments and a disdain for labor produce a "lady."

I have heard a working woman say with a smile of pride that her young daughter was not fond of work, but loved to "play the lady."

In England the term "lady," as will be seen by Webster, is a distinct title. It has its special application the same as Duchess, or Countess. Lady Clank may be ignorant and ugly and untidy and impossible as a woman—yet she is LADY Blank by legal right, if her father's or husband's rank so makes it possible.

In America we have no titles; and the cultured and intelligent mind understands that the word "lady" here is only applicable to one whom Webster has given the third definition:

"A WOMAN OF GENTLE AND REFINED MANNERS."

She may be a laundress, a housemaid, a saleslgirl or an object of charity—but if she is possessed of gentle manners and a refined deportment it is absolutely proper to speak of her as "a perfect lady."

If she is loud voiced, vulgar in speech or in dress, obtrusively ignorant, or rude, she is NOT a lady, no matter if she is born and reared in wealth, and if she sparkles with jewels.

She is a woman who has misused her opportunities of becoming a lady.

A woman whose wealth has made her name a familiar one in two continents recently entered a fashionable shop in New York in an unmistakable state of intoxication and disgusted the proprietor and salesmen by her rude and boisterous manners.

She is not—in America—a lady. She would of necessity be one in England if her father had been an Earl, or her husband a Knight.

It savors of the ridiculous to apply the term "sales ladies" to all women who are employed at mercantile counters. "Chorus ladies," "wash ladies" and "shop ladies" should understand that the word is offensive and absurd when thrust upon the listener.

It is not necessary for the "lady" to label herself. She is easily discovered. And if she is not there the flimsy label only makes her ridiculous.

The word WOMAN with a prefix is much stronger than the same prefix with "lady" attached.

A splendid woman, a noble woman, a lovely woman, has tenfold the strength of a "splendid lady," "a noble lady," or "a lovely lady." The term "a fine woman" is full of dignified meaning, while a "fine lady" suggests the gaudy butterfly.

A "sales woman" means one of the world's worthy workers, while a "sales lady" means nothing at all.

CLARK STREET

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—In Sunday's American I noticed an article to the effect that the Gazzetta del Massachusetts, the Italian newspaper which I publish, had indorsed Mr. Brogna's suggestion that Clark street be changed to Fitzgerald street in honor of the mayor.

The article in the Gazzetta has been misconstrued, as it reads that the Italian people of the North End oppose this plan.

The article in the Gazzetta calls Mr. Brogna's attention to many things that citizens of the North End are very much in need of. Sanitary conditions in that district need attention.

I and others of the Italian people protest against changing the name of Clark street to Fitzgerald street.

Very truly yours,
JAMES V. DONNARUMA,
Editor Gazzetta del Massachusetts.

The Fight Between the Cold-Blooded Turtle and the Big Serpent---CONSUMPTION

poison used for admixture, with the pulverized cancer of the white rat, has an affinity for the cancer tissue.

This cure for cancer, which has worked well in certain cases, was injected into the hip of the boy. Soon there appeared a decided inflammation, which was confined entirely to the cancerous tissue in the boy's face. This proved that the remedy injected into the boy's hip had gone directly to the seat of the disease, and had not produced an effect elsewhere.

It was found that the mixture was attacking the cancer, but progress was slow. The surgeons then opened the boy's face, took away a small part of the cancer with a knife and sewed up the wound without disturbing the bone, disfiguring the boy, or removing more than one-quarter of the cancerous growth.

The injections of the cure were repeated. The cancer began to diminish in size; it was soon absorbed. And the boy went out with the cancer entirely gone and cured. And he is absolutely well today. This happened two years ago.

Here is the other side of the same kind of experiment.

A man came to that hospital in Buffalo with a cancer growing as large as his head, in the lower part of his stomach. He was in desperate straits, suffering agony. Death could not be delayed long. Something drastic must be done.

The doctors, as they were bound to do under such conditions, cut the man open, but found that they could not possibly remove the cancer without killing the patient. So they sewed the man up again.

They asked him if he wanted the new experiment tried, and he said he did.

He was willing to die of the cure rather than be killed in agony by the disease.

The pulverized cancer of the white rat, with the poisonous admixture, was injected into the body of this man. The same wonderful results were shown; inflammation at once began in the cancerous tissue in the man's stomach.

And with wonderful rapidity the cancer began gradually to be absorbed into the system, until it was gone.

But, as every child ought to know, the impurities of the body are taken up in the BLOOD, which makes it so important to keep the blood ventilated with fresh air and well supplied with good food.

This cancer was absorbed so quickly that the man's system could not absorb it. And he died, poisoned by the cancer which the blood had absorbed. He died with the cancer gone, but was killed by the cancer.

This shows the accomplishments and the limitations of science. It proves that there is not only hope, BUT CERTAINTY THAT THE SCIENTIFIC METHOD OF ATTACKING DISEASE, THE MODERN WAY OF FIGHTING A DISEASE WITH THAT DISEASE ITSELF, WILL SUCCEED IN THE END.

And do not think with horror that the day will come when every child will have to be vaccinated over and over for the various diseases.

The hope of science, and the reasonable hope, is that men in time will eliminate these diseases entirely, SO THAT IT WILL NO LONGER BE NECESSARY TO VACCINATE OR OTHERWISE RENDER THE CHILD OR THE MAN IMMUNE.

When consumption shall really have been stamped out all over this earth, and the causes that breed consumption shall have been eliminated, we can go along without any fear of the disease.

The bacillus that develops consumption in an individual is just as much subject to extinction as the rattlesnake or the dinosaur. And so with the germs of other diseases. They are man's enemies, microscopic enemies, useful since they have compelled him to think of cleanliness. They can be WIPED OFF THE EARTH.

Little by little we shall learn how to fight them, and we shall get rid of them. Then we shall be able to stop fighting them.

The diphtheretic anti-toxin from the horse cures children.

The powdered cancer taken from the body of the white rat or the white mouse is used to destroy cancer in the human body.

It is a wonderful story of science, patience and marvellous accomplishments.

Into the body you put particles of cancer taken from the body of a lower animal. And these particles are mixed with poisons fatal to the cancer tissues. And immediately the cancer in that human being responds to the infection. It is as though you took a child belonging to a great family, infected that child with some deadly poison, and allowed it to run back to its family and kill off the others.

The little particle of cancer from the rat put into the human body, way down in the lower part of the hip, finds its way to its cancerous brothers growing in that body, carries the poison to them, AND DESTROYS THEM.

A wonderful story, more romantic and interesting than all the plays and all the novels ever written.

A Tribute to a Devout, Loving Christian Soul

By REV. ALBERT E. GEORGE.

MAY I add one word to the many that can be said to the honor of the Mgr. O'Callaghan.

He was so good and so kind to me personally, that I cannot refrain from saying just this word.

Some years ago, in a position in South Boston, I enjoyed his fellowship. We all need sympathy. Some men can give it. We want just those souls around us who can help us bear the changes and burdens of life.

The monsignor could do this. He gave me the comfort and sympathy that strengthen me for many a care.

Even after I left South Boston I occasionally met him. We had the old chats together. They were always helpful, in fact so helpful at times that I depended upon them. He was a good, devout, loving Christian soul, a man that served his generation valiantly and that South Boston may well be proud of.

I know he helped many a soul along, who was not of his communion, and what cheer he brought to bear upon those who were unfortunate and miserable.

We shall think of him as one that adorned his generation and that we shall sorely miss in the days to come. Requiescat in Pace.
